WRECK ON THE EAST RIVER.

Total Loss of a Steamer—Narrow Escape of a Whole Crew from Drowning.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning intense commotion was excited among the navigators of East River, as well as among the spectators from its shores, by the occurrence of a collision between a scow and a steamer called the Norwalk, occasioning the almost immediate sinking of the latter. The Norwalk, a steamer of about four hundred tons, belonged to Messrs. SMITH, LEWIS & WILSON, by whom she has for some time been run between Coney Island and New-York. Yesterday morning, however, it had been arranged that she should be used to carry passengers to Prospect Park races, and with this view she had been prepared for the reception of a large number of the sporting community, and, with a crew of about eight men, was proceeding serenely up the river, bound for the pier at the foot of Twenty-third-street, where an expectant throng, with bright anticipations of the pleasures before them, was awaiting her. She, however, as the sequel discloses, was not doomed to be the bearer of this jubilant assemblage of holiday-makers to the scene of sport. With full sails spread before the breeze, she was steaming on her course in the middle of the river, and was nearly opposite Fulton Ferry, when a scow, heavily laden with mud and propelled by a steam-tug, suddenly emerged from behind a ship being towed down the river, and bore on with terrific velocity toward the steamer. The pilots of both vessels soon perceived that a fearful collision was imminent, and in order to avert the inevitable catastrophe, the pilot of the Norwalk, simultaneously with his perception of the danger, reversed the paddles; but so unexpected was the occurrence, and so imminent was the approach of the tug, that before there was time for a second thought, a violent collision had ensued. The scow was a ponderous and heavily-built vessel, with square corners, massively bound with iron, and the violent contact of one of these corners had the effect of staving an immense hole in the side of the steamer. The Norwalk received the blow in the locality of the forward gangway, just about water line. The fracture being of such huge proportions, afforded an easy influx for an enormous volume of water, and in a few seconds it was evident that all efforts to prevent a total wreck would be futile. For a few minutes she seemed to battle spasmodically with the cumbrous load which was oppressing her, but becoming more and more depressed, with a sudden plunge, bows first, she performed a complete somersault, and the waters closed over her, leaving scarcely any portion of her rigging visible. While the wreck was being accomplished, as above described, the crew, in a state of confusion and excitement, and solicitous for their own safety had succeeded in launching a small boat, and four of them—namely, the captain, pilot, fireman and engineer—had taken possession of her, just as the struggling steamer, after a last effort, had succumbed to the overpowering influence of her watery cargo. In going down she partially revolved, and the paddle-wheel rising under the small boat, capsized her, and her occupants were immediately immersed, and were struggling desperately for their lives. The remaining men of the crew, frantic with the perils surrounding them, plunged into the river, and with that energy which is prompted by the fear of death, swam bravely. The dangers by which they were encompassed, however, had not been unobserved, and numbers of spectators who had set off in boats rendered opportune assistance, by picking up the gasping crew. Notwithstanding the hair-breadth escapes many of the men experienced, not one was lost—a happy result—undoubtedly owing to the timely arrival of the small boats. One of these, however, containing three men, at one time promised to add another phase to the disaster. These men were among the first to put off to the succor of the distressed crew, and had nearly placed themselves alongside of the sinking steamer, when she foundered. Her close proximity was fraught with great danger, for the whirlpool created by her submersion nearly had the effect of swamping them, and it was only by the dextrous handling of the oars that the boat maintained her position. As soon as it was ascertained that all the crew had been saved, attempts were made for the raising of the unfortunate vessel. Ropes were soon securely attached to her, and having been communicated to the steamtugs John Fallen and Mills, she was soon towed to the shore opposite ROBERTS' sugar store. Here all the usual devices were resorted to, but when the TIMES' reporter left the spot, the efforts to raise the vessel had been unavailing. The men, however, superintending the work appeared to think it probable that she would be raised during the evening. The Norwalk, it is stated, was in a sound condition, six years ago having been thoroughly reconstructed. Her value is estimated at $40,000, and, unfortunately for her owners, she is not insured.

MARINE CASUALTY.

A Ship Run Down and Sunk in the Harbor.

About 11:15 o'clock A. M. yesterday, when the steamer Russia, of the Cunard line, Captain LOTT, arrived at this port, from Europe, she ran into the Austrian ship Figlia Maggiore, which was at anchor there, and sunk her. The Figlia Maggiore was a full-rigged three-masted sailing vessel, and was struck by the Russia at the larboard side and went down in about ten minutes. Captain BOSNANOVICH and the mate of the Austrian vessel were at the office of Messrs. G. SLOCOVICH & Co., ship brokers and commission merchants, No. 121 Pearl-street, to whom the ship was consigned when the accident occurred, and the rest of the crew were all saved by the boats of their ship, and the towboats on hand, so that no lives were lost. The crew, who were all Italian sailors, were taken to the office of Messrs. SLOCOVICH & Co. Orders have been given by this firm to the United States Wrecking Company for raising the ship, which was in about eight fathoms water, and whose cargo consisted of French wines, perfumery, toilet soap, and other articles. The ship was a Austrian vessel, owned by the firm AMBADI C. RALLI, of Trieste, Austria. She was valued at about $60,000, and insured in the Austrian Lloyds', a branch office of which is in this City. The cargo was worth about $300,000, and is insured in different insurance companies. It had been taken in by the vessel at Marseilles, France, whence she had sailed on the 11th of March. The ship was a new vessel, and had arrived at this port day before yesterday, and not having yet been entered at the Custom-house, she had been lying at anchor only a short distance off Castle Garden. The weather was quite clear when the accident occurred, and the Cunard steamer had a regular pilot on board. The occurrence seems to have been caused by carelessness on the part of the pilot or Captain of the steamer. It has been stated that too many vessels had been lying on the Jersey side, where the dock of the Cunard steamers is situated, and that thus the steamer came so near the Battery.

SEVERE EXPLOSION.

Explosion in the East River—Three Men Injured.

Yesterday morning, at a few minutes before 11 o'clock, the steamtug William Parks was lying at her wharf at Pier No. 15, North River, foot of Wall-street, with steam up, ready at a moment's notice to proceed to Sandy Hook and tow to the City any inward-bound vessel that might need her services. Her Captain, THOS. BRANEY, was standing on the deck of the little vessel near the pilot-house, and had been talking with the cook, FRANCIS JOHNSON. The latter went forward, and taking some eggs from the refrigerator, which stood on the forward deck, was in the act of placing them in a basket, when suddenly there came a loud report; the wheel-house was lifted high in air and thrown into the river, a distance of twenty feet from the vessel; the Captain was lifted bodily to a great height and fell on the adjacent wharf; the cook was knocked senseless on the forward deck; and CHARLES POWELL, another of the hands, was thrown into the water, from which he was speedily rescued by some bystanders; the boiler of the tug had suddenly exploded.

A crowd assembled, Policemen were drawn to the spot, and all was excitement for a while in the immediate neighborhood of the scene of the disaster. The injured men were speedily cared for. The Captain was taken to his residence, No. 146 James-street, where he soon had medical attendance. He was found to be badly scalded and bruised, but it was not thought that his life was in danger. The cook and the deck-hand were conveyed by Officers WALSH and RYAN to Bellevue Hospital, where one of our reporters visited them later in the day, and found that their wounds had been dressed and that no fears of a fatal result were entertained. The correct list of the sufferers is as follows: THOMAS REANEY, Captain, residing in New-York, badly scalded and seriously bruised; CHARLES POWELL, deck-hand, aged 22, residing in Philadelphia, slight external injuries; FRANCIS JOHNSON, steward, aged 49, German, very badly scalded about the body and arms. JOHNSON has a wife and family residing in Boston.

The cause of the catastrophe remains to be explained. This is the most important matter to be considered whenever these steam-boiler explosions occur. No lives were lost, fortunately, in the present instance; but how many and who, of those who read these words, may not constitute the victims of the next casualty? The cause of the explosion is found in the weakness of the front head of the boiler, the iron of the head having been burned in forming the flange when the boiler was constructed.

The William Parks is the property of WASHINGTON DUCKETT, of Philadelphia, and was built five years ago. The damage to the vessel is comparatively slight, amounting to less than $3,000. The boiler was five years old, and on the engine the names of the manufacturers of the engine and the boiler were inscribed, as follows: "NEAFIE & LEVY, Engine Builders, Philadelphia, 1864, No. 415." The tug, after the explosion, was towed to the next pier below that at which she had been lying, and during the afternoon was visited by many of the curious and of the anxious, whom the report of the occurrence (both in the air and in the newspapers) brought to the scene.

ANOTHER PETROLEUM FIRE.

Ten Thousand Barrels of Oil Burned at Hunters Point—An Island of Fire Wafted up the Creek—Tremendous Explosion of the Tanks.

About 3 o'clock yesterday morning, the watchman of the oil factory, at Newtown Creek, discovered a fire in two places on the opposite side of the creek on the premises of the Devoe Manufacturing Company, of No. 117 Fulton-street, New-York, refiners of petroleum and naptha. They seemed at first but small fires, like the glimmer of lanterns, and at two points at a distance of three hundred feet apart, but before five minutes had elapsed, they burst forth with a volume of fire and smoke, the two lights united, and from that time for twenty-four hours after, the conflagration raged with prodigous fury. An alarm was at once sounded, and very promptly engines Nos. 1, 2, 3, 9, 10, 12 and 13, from the Brooklyn (E. D.) Fire Department, arrived, and with them Hose Companies Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8. The Police steamer soon came upon the scene, and the steamer Minnehanouch also threw a stream upon the burning mass. The shed in which the fire raged the hottest, contained in tanks and cans nearly one thousand barrels of petroleum, and the scene was one of the wildest confusion. Lighters loaded to the water's edge with petroleum and naptha were caught in the hot embrace; their masts gave way and went down like reeds in a prairie storm. The brig Avarice, lying at the wharf ready for sea, loaded with oil belonging to HARMONY & NEPHEWS, was cut loose, but the flames reached the rigging and sails, and floated down the creek one blaze of fire. She soon grounded near the point that juts out at the mouth of the creek and the devouring element fed upon deck, rigging and masts, and as the burning barrels floated off the vessel sank. The whole creek and river seemed a sea of fire. An immense volume of burning oil, that seemed like a blazing island, was carried by the tide up toward the new wooden bridge that divides Kings and Queens Counties at Newtown Creek, and on that bridge for a few minutes until danger was passed, a hundred streams were playing. Here both Police and firemen did noble work. The lighter Countersign, belonging to GILMORE, MCBANE & Co., no insurance, the lighter Star and the barges Washington and W. Price had already been burned to the water's edge, and on land the fire still continued its terrific ravages upon everything within a radius of ten acres. Adjoining the burning sheds was the coal, wood, lime and lath yard of JOHN C. PROVOST. These, of course, fell in the way of the advancing flames, and are they were arrested the establishment sustained a damage of upward of $5,000. Within the tenement-houses close at hand, the wildest confusion raged. Beds, bedding and furniture were either thrown from the windows or hurried from the doorways, while the owners sought refuge from the cold of the morning in the cars and yard of the Long Island Railroad Company. Fears were entertained for the machine shops of the Company, and they were only saved by the vigorous efforts of a gang of men under the direction of THOMAS MCMAHEAD, the superintendent of the road. Men and women hurried away from the locality when it was rumored that a large tank, containing many thousand gallons had been caught by the flames, and that it would burst when the iron sides felt the heat. The rumor proved true, for at about 4:45 a tremendous explosion took place. Every house within a half a mile of the scene was shaken to its foundation, and men were prostrated on the bridge as if knocked down by clubs. The effect of the conflagration was then grand and startling. River, Creek and Point, all seemed one molten sea of flame, and the rising sun was darkened in the smoke and lurid glare.

A lager-beer saloon near the sheds, kept by F. C. BLOEMER, was destroyed, the occupants of the dwelling-house barely escaping with their lives.

The oil refinery of Messrs. DAY & CO., immediately adjoining the Devoe Manufacturing Company, also went down before the advancing flame, and ere it paused upward of 4,000 barrels of oil and an extensive plant of machinery were consumed. Their loss is about $50,000, partly covered by insurance. The shop for the manufacture of cans for the Devoe Manufacturing Company was probably the most extensive in the world. Their loss cannot be far under $200,000. Some two hundred hands were employed in that department alone, and in less than one hour, such was the fury of the devouring element, a heap of broken machinery, charred rafters and broken walls alone marked the spot.

The Devoe Manufacturing Company was undoubtedly the largest petroleum refinery in the United States. In their yards there were nine immense tanks, capable of holding 240,000 gallons of oil, and 4,000 barrels of petroleum. There were also 12,000 cans of oil ready for shipment, and forty barrels of turpentine were stored in the yards. All were consumed. In another yard, used principally for canning and storing refined naphtha, some 22,000 cans were on fire at one time. There were also 600 barrels of refined petroleum and 200 cases of cans (ten gallons each) of the same oil.

Flocking like vultures to the scene came river-thieves and landsharks in swarms, jumping from boats and eagerly seizing every article except the burning petroleum. The river-thieves, in their haste, towed and bore away everything within reach. On shore, Captain STEARNS, of the Forty-first Precinct, and a posse of policemen aided materially in keeping back the marauders, who rushed into tenement-houses abandoned by their occupants, and were eagerly engaged in plundering what was left.

Early in the morning two steamers from the New-York Metropolitan Fire Department arrived, but their services were declined as unnecessary by Chief-Engineer SMITH, of the Brooklyn Fire Department. The fire continued to rage during the day, but was hemmed in by the streams playing upon it, and exhausted by its very fury and the lack of material on which to feed. It finally died out late last evening, though subdued and smouldering it will last probably for days. That it was the work of an incendiary seems to be without doubt. The loss will not be far from a half million dollars, and upward of 500 persons are thrown out of employment. The books of the firm containing the insurance accounts cannot be procured for some days, but the losses to insurance companies will probably be moderate as compared with the losses by the conflagration.

A Livery Stable Destroyed by Fire in Brooklyn—Loss of Carriages, Velocipedes, &c.—Estimated Loss, $75,000.

Shortly after 9 o'clock last night a fire broke out in the extensive livery stables of H. B. WITTY, Nos. 2, 4, 6 and 8 Nevins-street, Brooklyn, one of the finest establishments of the kind in that city. One of the employes discovered the flames breaking out at the upper end of the hay loft, immediately adjoining the liquor store of GOODENOUGH & FRANKEL, No. 12 Nevins-street. The flames, once started, spread through the four-story building rapidly. An efficient force of men, who applied themselves vigorously to the task of saving the five stock, succeeded in getting every horse out of the premises in a remarkably brief space, although they had to be taken from the second story. In a short time the whole building was totally destroyed. A considerable portion of the rolling stock, including carriages, wagons and velocipedes, was also saved. The Witty stables were erected about one year ago, and were regarded as a model for convenience, ventilation and general accommodation. The building cost $40,000. The rolling stock of carriages, velocipedes, sleighs and other articles in the building was valued at $50,000, and it is estimated that the loss in that department amounts to about $25,000. The building and stock are insured in a dozen companies of New-York and Brooklyn for $30,000. The building in which the liquor store was located is owned by Mr. CRISCOLLO. It sustained damage to the extent of about $500; insured. The house of GEO. P. JARVIS, and several other houses, were damaged to the extent of about $200 each. But a brief time elapsed from the breaking out of the fire until the magnificent stable edifice was in ruins. At 10:30 o'clock the walls gave way with a terrible crash, and the stable was no more.

THE FIRE AT BULL'S FERRY.

Extensive Destruction of Kerosene Works—Three Thousand Barrels of Oil Burned—The River Covered with Flames.

The details of the extensive kerosene oil fire at Bull's Ferry on Monday, of which a partial account was given in yesterday's TIMES, show that the fire was of a very serious nature. The scene of the affair was a spit of mainly artificial ground at Bull's Ferry, running into the river, on which were the kerosene oil works of Messrs. WYCKS BROTHERS, of No. 188 Front-street, and MORGAN & CO.'s vitriol and chemical manufactory. The fire broke out at 3 o'clock on Monday in the former place, which contained at the time a large quantity of both crude and refined oils. The fire was discovered in the pan-room, and is supposed to have arisen from the gas which is generated in the process of manufacture becoming ignited. About forty men were employed in the works, who, under the direction of JAMES REILLY, Superintendent, and U. SHORT, the engineer, made every effort to repress the flames. By their exertions much of the property was saved which would otherwise have been a total loss. The burning oil escaped from the tanks through waste pipes, and covered the surface of the river for some distance with flame many feet high. About 200 barrels of oil were saved by being thrown into the river, and others were rolled into a swamp near by. A number of barrels exploded without doing any damage. The fire-engine "John Fuller" from West Hoboken, came to the scene of the conflagration, but was not able to render much assistance. The wind fortunately was not, in the direction of the adjoining works or they would certainly have been destroyed. As it was, a shed belonging to FOSDICK, SNEDDER & Co., and containing several thousand empty tar barrels, was destroyed, together with a fence, shed, gateway and part of a frame building used as an office with its contents. The fire was finally got under control about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, but remained in a smouldering state through the day. About 600 barrels of crude oil were destroyed, with 1,500 to 2,000 barrels of refined oil in tanks, together with the treating house, boiler rooms and a large warehouse. The loss of WYCKS BROTHERS will probably equal $100,000, the amount stated in the TIMES, and is not covered by insurance. That of the other parties will be comparatively small. Fortunately no person was hurt during the fire, notwithstanding the reports to the contrary.

THE TURF.

The Prospect Park Inaugural Trotting Meeting—The Opening Day—Fine Weather, Fine Trotting and Fair Attendance—The Fastest Double Team Time Made on Record.

Yesterday was the inauguration day of the Prospect Park Fair Grounds Association trotting, which will continue over Thursday and Saturday. The weather was delightful; a capital programme of sport was provided by the executive, but the attendance was far from being as numerous as the Association had a just right to anticipate. Whether the Prospect Park Course will ever become a popular trotting track with New-Yorkers is a matter of doubt, for the route by the Coney Island horse cars, which run within a short distance of the track, entails a long, dusty and weary ride; while those who take the route by steamboats have a good two miles to walk, which under a Summer sun is not the most desirable exercise. For the residents of Brooklyn, however, who have not to encounter the annoyance of crossing the East River ferries, Prospect Park must be a favorite resort, and upon everything within a radius of ten acres. Adjoining the burning sheds was the coal, wood, lime and lath yard of JOHN C. PROVOST. These, of course, fell in the way of the advancing flames, and are they were arrested the establishment sustained a damage of upward of $5,000. FRANCE.

The Elections—Excitement in Marseilles—The Anti-Imperial Candidates Victorious in Paris and Lyons.

PARIS, Tuesday, May 25.

Dispatches from Marseilles report that there has been much excitement in that city over the elections. Large crowds paraded the streets, and there were shouts of "Vive la Republic." The places of business were closed in anticipation of a riot. At the last accounts order had been restored. The result of the elections in Paris and Lyons has been favorable to the Anti-Imperial candidates. It is reported that M. ROCHEFORT has been chosen. Seventy-three elections are completed. They show the following result: The Government candidates (official) were elected in 49, the Independent in 9, the Democratic in 3, and in the remaining 12 there was no result.

The Bourse is flat, owing to the excitement occasioned by the elections.

Further Returns—Excitement in Paris.

PARIS, Tuesday, May 25—Evening.

The excitement over the elections is very great, and the boulevards are crowded with people anxious to hear the results.

Further returns announce the election of eight official candidates, three Independent, two Democrats, and two Liberals, in addition to those reported this morning. MM. RASPAIL, FAVRE and DORIAN are elected.

PARIS, Tuesday, May 25—9 P. M.

The returns of sixty-two more completed elections have been received, and show the following results: Official candidates elected, 48; Independent, 11; Opposition, 3. M. OLLIVIER, defeated in Paris, has been chosen for the Var. MM. DAVID, GREVY, PERIERE and SCHNEIDER are reëlected. M. ARAGO is defeated.

It is now considered probable that the full returns will show a larger majority for the Government than was anticipated.

The feeling on the Bourse at the close of the day was confident and firm.

The London Times on the French Elections.

LONDON, Tuesday, May 25.

The Times this morning in an editorial on the French elections, says the chief cities repudiate the idea of the Empire, and a revival of political activity will result from a verdict which condemns personal government. The restoration of parliamentary government may conciliate the existing feeling; by such means only can the Emperor expect to mitigate an opposition which has not yet become anti-dynastic.

PARIS, Tuesday, May 25—Midnight.

All the returns received up to this hour show that 196 official and 26 opposition members have been elected. The elections in forty-eight districts still remain undecided.

The Moniteur has a report that France and Italy have completed an arrangement for the evacuation of Rome by the French troops in September.

The Epsom Races.

LONDON, Tuesday, May 25.

The Epsom Summer meeting commenced to-day under the most favorable circumstances of fine warm weather and excellent turf. The attendance was very large. The first race was for the Woodcote Stakes of 10 sovereigns each, with 200 sovereigns added, for two-year olds, colts to carry 122 pounds, fillies 119 pounds, the owner of the second horse to receive 50 sovereigns out of the stakes; three-quarters of a mile (seventy-seven subscribers.) The race was won by Mr. MERRY'S bay filly Sunshine, by Thormanby, out of Sunbeam, who beat Mr. RAY'S b. c. Green Riband, by Knight of St. Patrick, out of Beechnut, and Mr. BARNARD'S b. c. Orlando, by Orlando, out of Lady Palmerston. Twenty started, and the betting was two to one against the winner.

The next race was for the Rous Stakes, a free handicap of 20 sovereigns each, with 200 sovereigns added, for three-year olds and upward—one mile—for which there were ninety-eight entries, out of which eight started. The race was won by Mr. WAITE'S b. f. Mysotis, by Newminster, out of Souvenir, four years old, beating Mr. PAYNE'S ch. c. President Lincoln, by Kohinoor, out of Topsail, four years old, and Mr. JOHNSTONE'S b. c. Lord Hawthorn, by Kettledrum, or King of Trumps, out of Lady Alice Hawthorn, three years old. The betting was eight to one against Mysotis, two to one against President Lincoln and three to one against Lord Hawthorn.

Orders from General Dulce—Horses to be Seized for the Government Service—The Steamer "Perit."

HAVANA, Tuesday, May 25.

Captain-General DULCE has issued a decree, ordering the military authorities in eight specified jurisdictions to seize all the horses, to prevent their falling into the hands of the rebels. The owners are to be paid for their animals, which are to be used in the Government service.

The steamer Perit arrived at Kingston, Jamaica, on the 15th inst., after landing the expedition in the Bay of Nipe. She returns to New-York in a few days. Five Cuban passengers remained on board.

The markets are generally dull.

Auction Sale of a Railroad at New-Orleans—The Commercial Convention.

NEW-ORLEANS, Tuesday, May 25.

The sale of the New-Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad took place this morning by virtue of an order from the United States Circuit Court, under the auspices of Ex-United States Marshal F. J. HERRON. The principal interests represented were the Illinois Central Railroad, the Mobile and Chattanooga Railroad, the bondholders of the road, and CHAS. MORGAN. The first bid was $1,000,000, the next $1,500,000. The bids then proceeded by hundreds of thousands to $2,000,000, which was bid by Mr. PAUL BLANC in behalf of the bondholders of the road, to which amount he was limited. C. A. WHITNEY, representing CHAS. MORGAN, bid $2,050,000, at which amount it was knocked down after a moment's pause, and $75,000 immediately paid as a guarantee. Mr. WHITNEY announced that it was the intention of Mr. MORGAN, who was present in person, to immediately set about extending the road to the Sabine. The actual sale occupied barely ten minutes.

The Commercial Convention has adjourned over till Wednesday, and the delegates are on an inspecting tour to the mouth of the Mississippi to-day.

Meeting of the New-England Labor Reform League at Boston—Speeches of Prominent Reformers—The Labor Reform Creed Defined—Strong Resolutions Adopted—Radical Changes Demanded—Address of Wendell Phillips.

BOSTON, Tuesday, May 25.

The Convention of the New-England Labor Reform League assembled to-day in the Meionaon, E. H. HEYWOOD, of Worcester, President of the League, in the chair. The President, in calling the meeting to order, gave an explanation of the objects of the League. He referred in detail to disadvantages resulting to the laboring classes from the power of property centralized and acting as a unit, from corporations, from railroads and the monopoly of land. The cost of railroad travel had been estimated by JOSIAH QUINCY at half a cent a mile, yet by the grant of corporate powers, instead of costing the individual twenty-five cents to go from Boston to Worcester, it costs quadruple, and the result is that the stock is watered and the people are cheated out of $2,000,000, and upon this same interest is to be paid by the traveling public for all time to come. He closed by enumerating the five points of the labor reform creed to be free trade, free money, free travel, free transportation and free land.

A long series of resolutions was introduced and discussed, declaring:

First, That the art of wresting from others the largest possible amount of value for the least possible return is a dishonest practice, which will result in monopoly and speculation.

Second, That the monopoly of gold and silver by the Government for the purpose of money, tends to give a few persons the privilege of controlling the interest on money, the prices of commodities and the wages of laborers.

The third affirms free money as the true policy for giving to each man the opportunity to use his credit as he pleases, independent of corporations.

The fourth affirms the wrongfulness of taking interest, and urges the abolishment of the national banks and the substitution of Treasury certificates of service for the present Government currency.

The fifth condemns the Massachusetts Legislature for refusing to repeal the Interest law; for granting more privileges to chartered capitals, and at the same time refusing to incorpoiate workingmen for cooperative purposes, and condemns the Governor of Connecticut for seeking to have the rate of interest raised to seven per cent.

Sixth, That the poverty of workingmen results not so much from the designs of individual employers as the false system upon which business and finance is conducted.

Seventh, That the organization of labor reformers throughout New-England should be secured in order that they may be represented in the National Labor Convention.

The eighth urges that the free public markets shall be established in cities.

The ninth affirms the purpose to make the labor reform paramount in the political action to be taken in the various elections.

Other resolves follow, mainly favoring the reduction of a day's labor to eight hours.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

At the afternoon session B. J. BUTTS, of Hopedale, Mass., read an essay on the labor question, reviewing the whole subject, and attempting to show the admitted advantages of the decrease of hours from twelve and fourteen to ten.

Letters were received from WM. H. SYLVES, of Pennsylvania; Rev. J. M. MANNING, of Boston, and Senator SPRAGUE, of Rhode Island, expressing their sympathy with the objects of the meeting. In his letter, Senator SPRAGUE said:

"I hoped to be present to give such a clear picture of the present down-hill course of all our interests, and at the same time furnish the only remedy in all who hear me will understand and go to work right."

A report signed by Miss M. J. ANDREWS, SARAH E. FLETCHER and SARAH H. HATHAWAY was submitted, relative to the question of woman's labor, in response to the vote of the Workingwoman's Convention, held in Boston last week, and referred to the Labor Reform League. The report considers the grievances of the sewing-women, and appeals to the wealthy of Boston for aid and advice, in view of the fact that the interests of society in general were involved in the welfare of the industrious female population. Miss ANDREWS also submitted a resolution, declaring that the men have failed in their duty to protect the natural and inalienable rights of the women, and that the starvation wages which now rules for women's work, are in contravention of the Constitution of Massachusetts.

Short addresses were made by Mrs. SARAH E. HATHAWAY, of Boston; ROBERT BOWER, of Lawrence; E. H. ROGERS, of Chelsea, and others.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session was well attended. The first speaker was Rev. Mr. MALLALIEU, of Boston, who acknowledged himself a sympathizer with the objects of the League. Miss JENNIE COLLINS followed in a sharp and characteristic speech, in the course of which she reflected severely on Senator SUMNER for voting against the Eight-Hour law in Congress.

WENDELL PHILLIPS was the next speaker. He held that commerce was labor—a great civilizer and cosmopolitan agent—and derided the idea that the world of industry had not progressed during the last eight thousand years. In all practical reforms the way to advance a cause was to get on the round of the ladder, next to that on which the people stand and press on until you reach it. He held that labor as well as capital made the laws, and that it was the same in popular movements as in personal teaching. It was foolish for labor to attack capital. The true remedy was to bring the brains of the whole community to bear upon the subject of labor reform by giving the workingmen more leisure and knowledge. Mr. PHILLIPS contended that the capitalist was equally interested with the laborer in bringing about industrial reform. The workingmen were not sufficiently interested in their own cause to succeed; President GRANT, his legal advisers notwithstanding, had done more for the workingmen than anybody else. The laboring men have got to ask for what they want intelligently, and confine their operations to the eight-hour rule and to shools in the evening. Laboring men would then be educated up to the point of coöperation. Mr. PHILLIPS said that the eight-hour rule and schools for workingmen were destined to create as great a revolution among political parties as ever the negro did in the slave question. The speaker disapproved of "strikes" among workingmen, and recommended as the best remedy for their wants, for them to strangle Republicanism with one hand and Democracy with the other, and march to the polls in a solid phalanx with a "labor ticket." In conclusion, Mr. PHILLIPS recommended that the meeting pass an additional resolution, thanking President GRANT for his action in relation to the Eight-Hour law.

The meeting then adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Judge Busted at Montgomery—The Coming Investigation.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Tuesday, May 25.

Judge BUSTED is now holding a term of the United States Court here. The Congressional Committee to investigate his conduct are expected to-night. Judge BUSTED has been here two weeks, and was here when it was stated from Washington that he desired the investigation to proceed at Washington, because it would be unsafe for him to come to Alabama.

Reported Death of Judge Joseph P. Allyn, of Arizona.

HARTFORD, Conn., Tuesday, May 25.

A cable dispatch received in this city to-day announces the death, in Paris, of Judge JOSEPH P. ALLYN, son of Ex-Mayor T. M. ALLYN, of this city. Judge ALLYN was appointed one of the Judges of the Territory of Arizona by President LINCOLN when the Territorial Government was organized, and performed the duties of the office for four years. He went to Europe two years ago, being troubled with a pulmonary complaint. He was 36 years old.

Heavy Thunder Storm and Gale in Kansas.

ATCHISON, Kansas, Tuesday, May 25.

A heavy thunder storm occurred yesterday in this vicinity. A house in Effingham Station, on the Central Branch Road, was blown to atoms, and four persons who were in the house at the time were badly injured. A lady was blown about two hundred feet. Other people were blown some distance, and all more or less hurt, but none seriously.

TERRIBLE CRIMES.

Bloody Affray in the Fourth Ward—Two Men Fatally Stabbed.

ASSAULTS BY GERMAN SAILORS.

Boys Accused of Drowning One of their Companions.

Verdicts in the Sheriff-Street and Lipman Inquests.

THE FOURTH WARD AFFRAY.

Condition of the Wounded Men—The Assailants Still at Large.

PETER BYRNES and WILLIAM BRADLEY, who were stabbed in Oak-street at an early hour yesterday morning, yet remain in Bellevue Hospital, where they were conveyed immediately after the affray, and while both are considered in a dangerous condition, the wound of BYRNES is thought to be mortal. BYRNES was stabbed in the left breast, and Dr. ARMSTRONG, who made the first examination of the wound, is of opinion that the point of the knife penetrated the lung, in which case death must soon ensue. BRADLEY, who was stabbed in the small of the back, has not suffered any relapse, and hopes of his recovery are entertained.

These wounds proceeded from as slight a cause as ever occasioned deadly hurts. At 1 o'clock in the morning three Spanish sailors were reeling through Oak-street, roaring out one of their native songs in boisterous and discordant measure. These noises soon attracted the attention of BYRNES and BRADLEY, who were loitering in front of No. 33 Oak-street, the home of BRADLEY. Actuated by the spirit of mischief the two attempted to imitate the uproarious song of the Spaniards, and the latter, hearing the sounds, suddenly paused, and an altercation ensued between the two parties. Each poured out in dissonent language epithets and abuse, the more galling because neither understood the other. Presently one of the Spaniards was struck, by whom is not certainly known, but it is sure that he first set the Spanish blood aglow. Instantly the sailors whipped out their sheath knives and in a moment BYRNES and BRADLEY were beaten to the pavement with their wounds, and their cries of agony reverberated through the deserted streets. The flowing blood, and the sight satiation of their anger, cooled off the Spaniards with amazing rapidity, and in a moment, fully sobered, they dashed off into the labyrinths of the Fourth Ward, and had disappeared before the policeman who had heard the cry of the wounded men had reached the scene of the affray.

The policeman found the wounded lying upon the sidewalk, and these were at first taken to the Oak-street Station-house, close at hand, but were soon removed to Bellevue Hospital as already related. While at the Station-house BRADLEY stated that he is a native of Scotland, a plumber and gas-fitter, and lives at No. 33 Oak-street, while BYRNES said he is a native of Ireland and a cook on the tug-boat President. Both men agreed in their accounts of the affray and in the descriptions which they gave of the persons of their assailants. But these descriptions are of the most meagre and general character and cannot be of much service in the pursuit. The Police, however, are doing all that they can in the matter, and the descriptions having been sent out by general alarm immediately after the affray, the officers throughout the City are on the alert for the assailants. As yet, however, the search has proved entirely unsuccessful, and no trace whatever of the midnight marauders has been found.

THE SHERIFF-STREET MURDER.

An Inquest by the Coroner—The Prisoner Held for Trial.

Coroner KEENAN held an inquest yesterday

SEIZURE OF A STEAMER.

The Quaker City in Custody of the United States Marshal.

The steamer Quaker City, or Columbia, as she has been lately designated, was seized yesterday by the United States Marshal for contemplated violation of the neutrality laws. A few days ago Collector GRINNELL became aware of suspicious circumstances connected with the vessel, and he telegraphed such information as he was possessed of to Washington. He received a reply directing him to withhold the vessel's papers and to communicate with the United States District-Attorney. After a full investigation of all facts, District-Attorney PIERREPONT yesterday entered a process against the vessel, and she was placed in the custody of the United States Marshal.

The Quaker City is an old and rickety vessel, barely, it is said, seaworthy. She has been lately running on a Southern route; but she did not pay expenses, and was withdrawn and laid up. Within a few weeks past she was purchased by her present owners for an amount somewhere between $100,000 and $130,000. She was then altered, all her deck incumbrances being removed, a heavy platform, looking very much like a gun-deck, placed aft, and her wheel-house also placed aft. A cargo of 2,000 barrels of flour was placed on board, and a crew of about forty men shipped. A number of these left, as the vessel did not sail at the time her officers promised she would. Others, however, have been procured, and then application was made at the Custom-house for clearance papers for Kingston. These were of course refused, although the owners of the vessel offered to give bonds to almost any amount if the vessel was allowed to proceed on her voyage.

The Quaker City now lies at the pier foot of Thirteenth-street, East River, and there it seems she is likely to remain for some time to come.

THE CROTON BOARD.

The Rumored Insanity of the President —The Business of the Board.

The statement made in a morning paper of yesterday, that Mr. THOMAS STEPHENS, President of the Croton Board, is insane and confined in a lunatic asylum, is flatly contradicted by the officials of the Department. Mr. STEPHENS has been suffering from ill health for six months past, and a few weeks ago he met with an accident which increased the physical difficulties under which he had been laboring, but during the whole time he has never been so much prostrated, with the exception of a few days, as to be unable to attend to business. The further statement that the business of the Croton Department is at a standstill, that no requisitions can be made by the Department, and that the salaries of the officials are in arrears, is also contradicted. On Saturday last a number of requisitions and other papers bearing Mr. STEPHENS' signature were sent in to the Comptroller, and contracts to the amount of several hundred thousand dollars were opened on the same day, and will be awarded as soon as the sureties are approved by Mr. CONNOLLY.

The whole rumor of Mr. STEPHENS' insanity arose from the monthly payroll of the employés of the Department being returned because it did not bear Mr. STEPHENS' signature as usual, he being out of town. The omission has been rectified, and Mr. STEPHENS will be at his post as usual some time during the week.

Bids for City Stock.

Yesterday the following proposals for $1,000,000 Street Opening and Improvement Bonds were opened at the Comptroller's office. The bonds bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum. Proposals were received from twenty-seven different persons, the total amount bid for being $4,821,500, and the average rate being about $102,500 :

Asserted Robbery—A Doubtful Case.

On Saturday, the 20th inst., FREDERICK W. SCHWARTZ came to the City from Hunter's Point, and passed the evening in drinking wine at the Atlantic Garden, on the Bowery. About 11 o'clock he started to go home, but, being very sick, sat down for a time near the corner of Catherine-street. While he was sitting there two men came to him and said he had better get up, for a policeman was coming and would arrest him. They helped him up, took him to a saloon and gave him some soda-water, which made him worse than before. Then they took him to Chrystie-street, and in the entry of a house robbed him of his watch and ran off. He pursued them, and caught HYMAN UKRAINSKI, the man who had held him while the other took the watch. UKRAINSKI was arraigned in the Court of General Sessions yesterday on an indictment for robbery.

Mr. SCHWARTZ, through the interpreter, told his story as above.

UKRAINSKI was then called to the stand, and stated that a man named KIDD met him in the street on the evening in question, and asked him to come and talk German to a man who was drunk. He consented, and afterward helped carry SCHWARTZ to the house in Chrystie-street, KIDD saying that he would sleep there. While he was holding the drunken man up in the entry, KIDD suddenly snatched the watch and ran. He (UKRAINSKI) was walking slowly with SCHWARTZ when the latter, all at once, accused him of the robbery and had him arrested. The complainant's story and that of the prisoner differed only with reference to the gait at which the latter left the scene of the robbery. The jury, unwilling to convict of so grave a charge on so certain evidence, brought a verdict of petit larceny from the person, and Judge BEDFORD sent the boy to State Prison for five years.

Desperate Attempt at Suicide by a Millionaire.

Yesterday morning Mr. BARRETT H. VAN AUKEN, a gentleman well known in mining circles, and the President of the Durango Silver Mining Company, made a most desperate and probably successful attempt to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. It appears that Mr. VAN AUKEN, who has an office on the same floor as that of the East Tennessee Zinc Company, on the first floor of No. 73 William-street, was standing at the door about 1 o'clock in company with two or three gentlemen connected with the Zinc Company, and they all passed inside together. Mr. VAN AUKEN was seen to go into his own office, and he immediately dismissed his office boy on an errand. One of the gentlemen, already alluded to, then passed into VAN AUKEN's office, and was horrified to find his friend bleeding excessively from a frightful wound in the throat. Medical aid was summoned, and the flow of blood was staunched. It appears that the misguided man had acted with considerable deliberation, as several letters addressed to his friends and executors were found on the desk, as well as his shirt-collar and cravat, which he had removed, the better to effect his purpose. The wound inflicted with the razor was a very deep one, though the blade had escaped the windpipe. The physicians who attended the patient have considerable hopes of his ultimate recovery, although he has lost an immense quantity of blood. Mr. VAN AUKEN is a son-in-law of Mr. C. K. GARRISON, resided at No. 421 Fifth-avenue, and is reputed to be a millionaire, so that the motive which impelled him to make the attempt at self-destruction is unknown. He always appeared to enjoy life in a rational and contented manner, and his conduct yesterday is somewhat of a mystery in the absence of the key, which is no doubt in possession of his relatives.

A Gallant Policeman.

The Board of Metropolitan Police Commissioners held a meeting yesterday, and promoted Patrolman GRANGER, of the First Ward, to the position of roundsman, as a reward for his gallantry in nobly rescuing two soldiers who recently fell in the East River from a Hamilton-avenue ferry-boat. Roundsman GRANGER has also been presented with a purse of $35 from the rescued soldiers and their friends, in order that he may replace the uniform spoiled by his leap into the salt water.

ART IN BROOKLYN.

New Building of the Art Association—The Location and Design.

The Brooklyn Art Association consists of many of the leading and public-spirited gentlemen of that city, and includes in its membership several leading artists, besides a number of the best scholars in America. The Association has resolved to erect a first-class building with all the appliances and facilities necessary to enable artists to exhibit their works to the best advantage, and the public to inspect them with every opportunity for fair-play criticism, before approval. With these points in view, the managers of the Association have already purchased ground immediately adjacent to the Academy of Music, and are now engaged in raising the funds necessary to pay for the building. More than half the money required for this purpose has been subscribed, and the friends of art are solicited to aid the Association in completing its work. The ground secured has a frontage on Montague-street of fifty feet, and a depth of one hundred feet. The style of the new building, as decided upon, is of the Gothic order. The exhibition gallery is to be on the second floor. It will have an area of sixty-six feet and forty-six feet, with a height of thirty feet, and lighted with a skylight. On the east side will be an entrance to a passage twelve feet wide, connecting with the Academy of Music, a facility by which the two buildings can be used together on extraordinary occasions. In the front part of the building, on the same floor, will be the water-color gallery measuring nineteen feet by twenty-four feet. On the upper floor will be gallery for statuary and two studios with good light. These are the principal features of the interior. The plan gives promise of a very handsome and dignified exterior. The main entrance will be at the base of a lofty tower, and will be constituted of a high Gothic arch, sustained by grouped columns of variegated marbles. The front will be of Cleveland stone, pale buff in color, with a relief of dark red and gray. The arch of the main entrance will be guarded with iron gates. The vestibule will be approached through massive carved doors of wood. It will occupy twelve feet by eight feet. Beyond this vestibule will be a spacious hall extending to the rear of the building, the span of the arched ceiling resting on two rows of columns. Connecting with the hall will be the dressing and retiring rooms for visitors.

CASE OF ALLEGED FRAUD.

How the Criminal Courts are Used for Collection of Debts.

So long ago as the 14th of April last, Mr. CLINTON GILBERT, of the Greenwich Savings Bank, appeared before Justice DODGE, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, and filed a very verbose document alleging that he had been defrauded by JENKS BUDLONG and JOHN MURRAY, Jr., of the sum of $35,000. The complaint gave the details of this stupendous fraud with great particularity, and it appeared from the paper, that in May, 1863, GILBERT indorsed notes for BUDLONG for the amount named, and as security for the money received mortgages upon the property of BUDLONG in Ohio, and especially upon certain property in the town of Clarendon, Geauga County, known as the Chandon Cheese Factory, whose value was stated at $15,000. Especial mention is made of this property as the chief inducement for the issue of the loans, and it is also alleged that as to this property, and all other included in the mortgages, assurance was given by BUDLONG that it was a first lien, and upon the faith of his representations GILBERT became responsible, and indorsed the notes upon which the money was raised.

The complaint further alleges that GILBERT was induced, by the request and representations of BUDLONG, to delay sending the mortgages to the several county clerks in Ohio for record, and that when he did send them he found that his securities had been superseded by mortgages of prior date, executed by BUDLONG to JOHN MURRAY, JR., which had already been entered on the record, and constituted the first liens upon the whole of the property. Meantime GILBERT had become solely responsible for the whole of the money by the neglect of BUDLONG to provide for the payment of the notes, and at the same time he discovered that the securities which he held were worthless.

Upon this complaint a warrant was issued and placed in the hands of Sergeant MCDERMOTT, of the Court Squad, but its execution was long delayed by the absence of both of the accused persons from the City. Yesterday, however, Sergeant MCDERMOTT learned that BUDLONG had returned to New-York, and he then arrested him at No. 3 Front-street. When the prisoner was arraigned during the afternoon he stated that he is a merchant and a resident of Brooklyn, and in answer to the charge made against him pleaded not guilty, and demanded an examination. Justice DODGE demanded bail for his appearance in the sum of $70,000, and the accused not being prepared at the moment to furnish security to so large an amount, was committed to the Second District Police Prison. MURRAY has not yet been arrested, and is said to be still in Ohio.

Expedition by Artists to the Polar Sea.

Mr. WILLIAM BRADFORD, the artist, whose cruise to the shores of Labrador in search of icebergs last Summer is, doubtless, well remembered, will undertake a similar enterprise this season on a much larger scale. He has chartered a steamship of 330 tons at St. Johns, Newfoundland, and on the 25th proximo will sail thence, accompanied by several artists, for the Arctic regions, visiting all the points of interest made famous by the explorations of Drs. KANE and HAYES, and returning in about three months. The route of the expedition will be as follows: Leaving St. Johns, the party will sail directly for the east coast of Greenland, touching at principal Dutch and Esquimaux settlements along the coast, (including Upernavick, the northernmost settlement on the globe,) for the purpose of studying the character and customs of the inhabitants. Beyond Upernavick, the voyage will follow up the track pursued by Drs. KANE and HAYES, and for as Smith's Sound. The expedition will then turn south and west and visit Lancaster Sound, pushing through, if possible, as far as Beechy Island, the Winter quarters of FRANKLIN; thence homeward by the line of the American coast. The steamer to be employed is one of the class known as "Newfoundland Sealers," which are built in Scotland expressly for service in the ice packs of the Arctic bays and straits, and are unequaled in resisting strength of hull and ramming power of engine, by any other vessels in the world. Two skilful photographers have been engaged to accompany the expedition, and a small number of passengers, not over five, will be taken in the cabin. It is possible that Dr. J. I. HAYES may be among the latter. It is to be hoped that all this is anticipated by Mr. BRADFORD will be realized.

The German Carpenters, (Frame Workers.)

These men, who have recently formed an organization, which during the brief period of its existence has enrolled over 1,200 members, have just taken the initiative in striking for an increase of wages. They have called upon their employers, informing them that from the 1st of next month they will demand $4 per day for ten hours' labor for first-class workmen, and $3 50 for second-rate men. They request the employers to appoint a conference committee to meet a similar committee of the journeymen, for the purpose of coming to an understanding in the matter. The employing carpenters lately formed an organization to take action in reference to the present movements of the workmen. The journeymen carpenters' organization is composed of three branches, who meet in Third-street, Thirty-second-street and Harlem. This division of the organization into three branches has been effected for the purpose of giving each carpenter in the City an opportunity to join the movement. At present the wages of the men range from $2 50 to $3.

Second Assembly District Union Republicans.

The third meeting of the Second Assembly District Union Republicans, for the election of officers, was held last evening at No. 475 Pearl-street. The following ticket was elected, the great body of the Republicans having withdrawn: For President, Dennis McLaughlin; for Vice-Presidents, Michael J. Ryan, Michael Hayes; for Treasurer, Michael Haley; for Recording Secretary, Matthew Stewart; for Corresponding Secretary, Patrick Eliff; for members of the General Committee, Dennis McLaughlin, George Ross, James Oates. As at the former meetings, "Reddy the Blacksmith," accompanied by his myrmidons of the Fourth Ward Democracy, was on the ground prepared to offer every opposition. Being aware of this, the Republicans of the district did not put in an appearance. They have reorganized, and resolve to contest the issue.

Third Anniversary of the Harlem Catholic Association.

The Harlem Catholic Association celebrated their third anniversary at Sultzer's East River Park yesterday afternoon. The members of the society, numbering about seventy-five, and accompanied by their female friends, devoted themselves to terpsichorean amusements, and gaily treaded the lively measures played by Grafulla's String Band. There was a good attendance, and everything went very pleasantly. The object of the Society is to form a club and build a hall and reading-room for the benefit of the Catholic young men of this district, whereby a taste for literature and the graver questions of life may be cultivated.

Five Points Mission.

The $22,000 bequeathed to this institution by the late A. B. SCOLES has enabled the managers to enlarge the building, provide new recitation-rooms, offices, &c., and to realize their long-cherished plan of fitting up a free library and reading-room. The completon of this work was celebrated yesterday by a reception. Very many visitors came. The children went through a variety of exercises, and there were abundant indications that everything is in good working order. The ladies have not yet, however, done all that they wish to accomplish, and would be glad to receive contributions of books, periodicals or money.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM—BROOKLYN.

Before Judge Gilbert.

DECISIONS.

The following decisions were rendered yesterday:

Commercial Warehousing Company of New-York vs. Labau C. Stewart; motion to strike out answer as shown, granted, with $10 costs.

Wm. F. Jordan vs. Henry Babcock; judgment for plaintiff, with costs.

James Bly vs. James Richardson; motion to open default denied, with $10 costs.

Euclid Burns vs. Bridget Sheehan; judgment for defendant, with costs.

Margaret Bulger vs. James Lynch; judgment for specific performing by defendant of contract, and for an accounting to be settled; costs allowed plaintiff.

Edwin Moale vs. Allen D. Young; motion to set aside judgment and execution account to the defendant, Harry, and as to joint property of defendant, denied, with $10 costs.

CASE BEFORE THE COURT.

William L. Roy vs. John Robinson, Thomas Rice, Samuel Stewart, Maria Stilwell.—This was an action by William L. Roy, claiming some title to land in Clarkson-street, Flatbush, under judgment against Theodore Shelaber.

The defendants demurred to the complaint, that the plaintiff had no cause of action, on his own showing.

On argument the Court gave judgment for the defendants.

CITY COURT—BROOKLYN.

Before Judge Thompson.

DECISIONS.

In the case of Whitier vs. Onderdonk, demurrer overruled; defendant to have liberty to amend within twenty days after service of order on payment of costs of demurrer.

In the Same vs. The Same, costs to be re-taxed and defendant allowed to bring matter of the allowances before the Court.

In the case of Lockwood vs. Dailey, plaintiff entitled to judgment claimed.

In the case of Morse vs. Fourth-avenue Commissioners, demurrer overruled; defendant to have twenty days to answer on payment of costs.

In the case of Hayward vs. Brainard, proceedings should be set aside.

In the case of Mulvey vs. the Father Matthew Total Abstinence Society; judgment of $40 for plaintiffs.

POLICE COURTS.

Jefferson Market—Dodge, Justice.

ROBBERY IN A BOARDING-HOUSE.

About 6 o'clock Monday evening the room of Mrs. C. L. Stone, in the boarding-house of Mrs. Gleason, No. 140 East Fourth-street, was broken open and robbed of wearing apparel and other articles valued at $700. A man named Hugh Von Elsner occupied the next room, and as the communicating door between the two rooms had been broken open, and the third had evidently made his entrance and exit through the room of Von Elsner, that person was suspected of the crime, and was arrested by Detective Tully of the Fifteenth Precinct. The prisoner was arraigned yesterday afternoon, and, pleading not guilty, declared that he was fully able to prove that he was absent from his room at the time the robbery was committed. He was remanded until this morning to give him an opportunity to produce witnesses.

A DISHONEST SHOP-BOY.

John D. Hanken, whose arrest upon charges of pilfering large amounts of money from his employers has been mentioned, was arraigned yesterday upon a complaint made by Claus Wilkens, No. 167 Greene-street, and was committed for examination.

Essex Market—Shandley, Justice.

A RECKLESS TRUCKMAN.

Patrick Fitzpatrick was arraigned on complaint of Officer Hayden, of the Seventh Precinct, who states that the prisoner was in charge of a truck, and when near the corner of Monroe and Market streets, James Turner, an infant seventeen months old, being in the way, Hayden called to Fitzpatrick to stop, but he paid no attention to the call, and two wheels of his truck passed over the child, injuring it severely. The officer at once took the heedless Truckman in custody, and yesterday he was committed to await the result of the injuries he had inflicted.

STEALING LEAD PIPE.

Frank Burns and Richard Gaffney, two youths, sixteen years of age, were arrested by Officers Johnson and Hults, of the Thirteenth Precinct, for stealing lead pipe valued at $55 from the unfinished building at the corner of Delancey and Lewis streets. They confessed their guilt, and a complaint having been made by John Schoppart, No. 320 East Fourth-street, they were fully committed for trial at the General Sessions.

GETTYSBURG.

THE FOUNTAIN OF HEALTH.

Progress in the March of Medical Discovery.

The Paralyzed Made to Walk---The Rheumatic Cured.

Calculi Dissolved---The Functions of the Heart Repaired.

The Bloom of Youth Returned---Beauty Restored, Health Preserved and Life Prolonged.

When Hernando de Soto sought the far-famed "Fountain of Perpetual Youth," which Ponce de Leon was said to have discovered in Florida, neither fatigue nor hunger nor suffering delayed him in his march. For more than two years he held his way through the wilds and swamps which characterize the country of our Southern States from Florida to the Mississippi. Harassed by enemies without, and misery and discontent within his camp, he halted not until the yellow waters of the great river closed over his lifeless remains, to them consigned by his worn and weeping followers.

[That march is the great type of the efforts of human beings in the search for health. Harassed by untoward circumstances without, and the insidious craving of disease within, the mortal camp of our life, we are in a perpetual struggle with our deadly enemies. Modern science has done much to relieve suffering and to prolong our years, and every day brings some new fact in nature to the assistance of medical skill.

Although we cannot claim that the fabled fountain of Ponce de Leon has been discovered on the battlefield of Gettysburg, we do unhesitatingly assert that a spring has been found there which truly merits the title of a fountain of health; and any unprejudiced reader who will peruse the high testimony we shall offer, will admit the truthfulness of our assertion.]

A correspondent of the New-York Tribune has recently visited the Gettysburg Katalysine Spring for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsity of those accounts of the miracles of cure wrought with this water, given to the public from time to time since the great battle fought at that place. This writer says:

"There is no better way of exploding a humbug than by visiting the place of its birth, conversing with those who have known it from its cradle, and observed its daily walk and growth. People are not apt to be humbugged by anything which is daily under their eyes, or to attempt to humbug others if they have no interest in the attendant speculation."

"Throwing aside, therefore, all that was offered to me by parties interested in the Spring, I addressed myself to the task of ascertaining the opinions of its neighbors, those who have observed the effects of its water at all times and seasons upon invalids and upon persons in health.

What it Has Cured.

For several days I have prosecuted my inquiries in this vicinity, and have been not a little surprised to learn that so universal is the popular belief here in its efficacy, that the water is found in nearly every house in the village around the Spring; and it is not generally used as a substitute for the doctor, it is invariably used as a last resort when the physician or his prescription has failed to bring the hoped-for relief.

According to the popular belief here, if it has not cured everything, it has, at least, come so near it, that it is more difficult to say what it has not cured, than what it has. Unless we except the testimony on which we are accustomed to receive the most important judicial and scientific truths, we must believe this water has literally cured the sick, the lame, the blind, in Southern Pennsylvania during the last few years. We need not go very far from the Spring for the subjects of these modern miracles. I have seen and conversed with some of them; and there are scarcely a dozen or a number of persons in this community who, by the use of the water, have recovered the use of a limb or limbs long paralyzed by disease or accident, and past recovery by any other known therapeutic agency. There are also many who have recovered by the same means the use of organs or functions of the system long suspended from disease, and involving in their suspension the misery or despair of the afflicted. Many other cures—one of the stomach, another of the liver, another of the bowels, a fourth of the kidneys, and others of the heart, or brain, or nervous system—have been told to me. A very common effect of this water is that of the improvement of the sight, which may have been impaired by diseases of the eye, or of the eye, affecting the sight. One of the visitors to the Spring informed me of the cure of a female invalid with this water, in a neighboring county, who was blind, deaf and demented, from neuralgia in the head. Another visitor to the Spring, a few days since, informed me of a resuscitation, through the agency of this water, of an invalid, whom paralysis, largely of the muscles of the throat, had paralytic, who had not risen from his bed for years, or executed any voluntary movement, except feebly, with the arms and neck, whose body and lower extremities were virtually dead, all the functions being performed unconsciously to the sufferer. This living corpse took up his bed and walked after the use of half a dozen bottles of this water, and was, at last accounts, doing well, but not as a fact of complete recovery. But I must stop this narration of marvels lest I overtask both the patience and credulity of your readers."

The writer gives a number of new and interesting facts of the early history of this Spring. He thus refers to its first remarkable cure:

Among the invalids who resorted to this Spring for water at this period was one afflicted with that frightful malady apparently born of our civilization, and which is so rapidly on the increase in this country, that already its victims, the crippled and disabled, outnumber those of our late great war. ROBERTS' GOUT, until the discovery of this Spring, were as hopeless and helpless as they. This malady is sometimes called chronic rheumatism, but is more than rheumatism of our fathers than cholera morbus is the cholera born of the miasmas and simoons of Asia. It is also calle rheumatic gout, which, though a better, is not a descriptive appellation of a disease which would be as much dreaded as any of the forms of pestilence which have scourged the race, but that it tortures its victims for years instead of destroying them immediately. The individual afflicted with it to whom I have referred, presented one of the types of this disease. He was a young man when he was first attacked, and was an old one when he sought relief from the Spring. He resided in a neighboring town and came to Gettysburg on crutches. He applied to one of the burghers to procure him a supply of water, and for directions as to its use. The water was brought to him from the Spring, with a prescription from the person bringing it, which was obviously given in mockery of its medical pretensions and of the hopes of the sufferer. It was to the effect that he should only drink a gill at a time, and not more than three gills per day of this seemingly pure Spring water which was then on trial, and its claims as a medicine disputed even by a majority of those who were running after it. But the amazement of the practical jester in this instance may be more easily imagined than described on the reappearance of his victim a few weeks afterward, with the information that this prescription proved efficacious, and that the dread malady which had held him in its embrace during the better part of his life was relaxing its hold under the influence of the potent liquid; that the distortions of limbs and enlargement of joints had disappeared, and the hitherto unispensable crutch had been thrown aside. The fame of this cure extended to the neighboring States, and gave great impetus to the drinking of the Gettysburg Katalysine Water.

It was reported for the medical journals, and pronounced by medical men unparalleled in therapeutic interest and importance by any cure effected during the present century.

A New-York company was organized to place the water in market, and the whole country people commenced repeating the experiment of the Gettysburgers with the strange fluid.

It has been carried to every part of the country and of the world during the past year, and used with results which I will allow medical writers and the medical journals to state and characterize.

Medical Opinions.

We have only space for extracts from these medical quotations; but as they relate to a very important scientific and historical question, we will give the pith of them.

The New-York Medical Record, in an article entitled "The Gettysburg Katalysine Water," says:

"Where gouty or rheumatic persons are taking the water to this extent, we find an extraordinary quantity of uric acid secreted and deposited from the urine; the sweat no longer contains this principle in excess, as it generally does in gouty subjects; and, with proper attention to regimen and diet, the health rapidly improves; distorted limbs become straightened, and enlarged joints gradually reduced to their natural size."

The Medical and Surgical Reporter, of Philadelphia, Sept. 26, 1868, says editorially on the same subject:

"It is found to be adapted to dyspepsia, with its numerous sequences and complications, including disorder of the liver and kidneys, and the remote effects of the imperfect assimilation, as exhibited in gout, chronic rheumatism, neuralgia, and an impoverished state of the blood, or anemia. Our readers will doubtless remember those extraordinary cases of gouty concretions on the joints, commonly called 'chalk stones,' which, on reliable testimony, have disappeared after the somewhat protracted use of the Gettysburg Water."

A professional contributor to the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter, in a communication published in the issue of May 9, 1868, says: "One of the marvels of the history of the cures brought about by the use of the Gettysburg Water is the removal of podoidise, or hard lumps and concretions, evidently of a gouty nature. Whether we regard these lumps as deposits made up of chalk, or of urate of soda tissue, we are compelled to say with Dr. Bell, that the only removal of the inorganic body without surgical intervention, has not, we believe, been brought about by either internal remedies or external application, or by both united."

Intimately connected with chronic indigestion are diseases of the kidneys—exhibited in one case by diabetes, in another by calculus or gravel—of the cures of which, by the use of the Gettysburg Water, we have well-attested cases.

The New-York Medical Record says, in another article entitled "Our Recently-discovered Mineral Waters," which appeared in its issue of the 15th of August, 1868:

"We have good reason also to believe, from what we have seen and experienced, that it will, by long use, remove nodosities of the joints of a gouty nature. We have also seen cases of albuminuria much relieved by it, as well as the irritable bladder of old age, and calculus disorders of the lithic acid and diathesis."

The Tribune correspondent thus comments upon the foregoing:

"The interesting and important fact established by this testimony is that this water is the solvent of the stones of gravel, gout and rheumatism, so long sought in the mineral springs of the Old World, and the same proved discovery of which, by several European physicians, in the carbonate of lithia, a few years since, so greatly excited the whole medical profession. The testimony on this point appears to be quite conclusive and leaves no doubt that America is to bear away the palm of discovery in medical as in other branches of science and in the fields of invention. But this discovery is pregnant with something more than barren honor. The ancients regarded this solvent of stone as so important a medical acquisition that their fabulists located it in the fountains of life. Modern physicians comprehend that it must prove a by far more extensive and potent therapeutic agent than any known to our modern medica."

[We have also received a letter from our Gettysburg correspondent embodying quite a number of new facts relating to this Spring, especially to its curative and restorative effects, which, in view of the approaching inauguration of the Gettysburg Watering-place, will be interesting to health-seekers. Our attache has had a peep at the correspondence of the Gettysburg Spring Company, and has been permitted to make copies and extracts, some of which are so well written and pertinent to the subject matter of current interest in connection with these historic grounds, that we depart from our usual practice and give them insertion. The known high social position of many of their writers gives them an unusual value as certificates of facts.]

Gout.

The following account of his own affliction and cure of this dread malady with the Gettysburg Katalysine Water, is given by the popular landscape artist of New-York, F. Herring:

NEW-YORK, No. 839 Broadway, New-York.

Gettysburg Spring Company:

I deem it a duty to give you an account of my disease and cure, so that others may take faith and hope themselves the further agonies and sufferings incident to gout.

My disease was unmistakably "old-fashioned gout," and was so pronounced by several physicians. It commenced in my right great toe and extended diagonally across my foot and afterward took effect on the other foot and ankles, then both knees and finally my right elbow. It was persistent, that is to say, what the disease gained it held, and advanced in the order which I have named. The swellings at the first were not so great, but they finally became hardened. My head and general functions were much deranged, and digestion bad. Between the time I was first taken down and when I commenced to get limping about was five months, and for seven months I could not practice my art. I obtained temporary relief from the use of the usual remedies, but nothing permanent, and only sufficiently to enable me to endure my condition. A friend sent me a bottle of the water, accompanied with a circular. I had but little faith, but I would try anything for relief. I commenced drinking the water according to directions, and I cannot describe the effect obtained from a short use of it, except by saying that I felt as if I had an injection of new life. I drank in all 15 or 18 bottles, and would cheerfully use the Gettysburg Katalysine Water for the balance of my life, to retain the effects I have obtained, if necessary.

I have only one other remark, gentlemen—that is, my gout is entirely cured, the tophaceous lumps or deposits of urate of soda in my joints, have totally disappeared, and my functions are all in perfect order.

You are at liberty to make use of the testimony in any manner you see fit, either by publication or a personal reference. Yours, &c.,

FREDK. W. HERRING,
No. 839 Broadway.

Inflammatory Rheumatism.

OFFICE NEW-YORK SUN.

Gettysburg Spring Company:

GENTLEMEN: A sense of the great benefits which I have received from the use of the Gettysburg Katalysine Water impels me to give you a plain statement of facts.

I have had several terrible attacks yearly for fourteen years of inflammatory rheumatism. The disease appeared to have a predilection for my shoulders, hands and feet. My appetite was much impaired, and I was therefore very susceptible to malaria. I have periodical attacks of vertigo or dizziness. My feet were so swollen as to be useless, and my hands could not be touched without intense agony. In fact, my condition was almost unsupportable. I was a martyr to pain. I tried many remedies, and was under almost constant medical treatment. My cure was effected by about one case of two dozen bottles of the water, and, after I commenced drinking it, I used no other remedy, and to the wonderful "Nature's preparation," unaided by anything else, I owe my cure.

I can now, I think, outwork the most of men, and beat them in a race around a block. I would also call your attention to this—I was so constipated that I never had an evacuation except under the influence of a cathartic, but since using the Gettysburg Katalysine Water I am as regular as need be wished.

Chronic Rheumatism.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 24, 1868.

Gettysburg Spring Company:

GENTLEMEN: I deem it due to you and the invalid public, to state that I have been afflicted with rheumatism at intervals for the past seventeen years, or ever since I was a boy. My last attack commenced some ten months ago and prostrated me in my bed for about five months; it commenced in the knee and extended to the foot, thence back again up the limbs to the body, arms, chest and head; my joints were enlarged with urate or chalky deposits.

I tried the Gettysburg Water under the recommendation of Dr. Bull, the editor of the Medical and Surgical Reporter, of Philadelphia. After its use for some four weeks I experienced great relief, and commenced rapidly to improve in general health. The enlargement of my joints has disappeared with the exception of the hand, where some of the deposits yet remain; also an occasional pain in the chest. I am able to be up and walk without much assistance of the cane, and am about to start on a visit to the Springs.

Respectfully, yours,
CLAUDE J. DE BRULER.

This patient was afterward entirely cured.

Calculus, Kidney and Urinary Diseases.

GETTYSBURG, Penn.

I have been afflicted with chronic rheumatism more or less for ten or twelve years, some attacks prostrating me for months at a time. For several years previous to the use of the Gettysburg Katalysine Water, it was complicated with the accumulation of calculi in the kidneys and nephritic colic, consequent on their passage from the kidneys to the urinary bladder. These latter attacks were excruciatingly painful, and I could not have endured more of agony arising from this cause. After one of them, Dr. Horner prescribed the Gettysburg Katalysine Water, which I used accordingly. One of the first effects was on the kidneys, producing discharge of calculi, or gravel-stones, in large quantities and of considerable size; one of them, of more than ordinary dimensions, was passed with acute suffering of the colic, exhibiting evidences of reduction by the water—after which I rapidly improved in this respect and in general health; am now free from all these former inflammations. The enlargement of one of my fingers has also disappeared. The water now no longer regulates the kidneys, but the bowels. Another effect of the water, after its use for a few weeks, was the appearance of spots like those of the leopard on my legs, accompanied with swellings of the ankle-joints. But these have also disappeared with the disease.

It is proper to state that the evidently reduced calculus passed, as above described, was afterward totally dissolved by the water, as certified by my nephew, Dr. Tate, and I think also by Dr. Horner.

ROBERT TATE.

I have seen numerous samples of calculus obviously reduced by the solvent action of the Water so as to admit of their discharge.

Necrosis, Dissolution of the Bones and Running Sores.

I have been afflicted for twenty years with pains and general derangement of the vital functions, with running sores and decomposition of the bones, necrosis. These ulcers have discharged forty pieces of bone during that period. I have been repeatedly under the surgeon's knife, and in the hospitals; have been much of the time on crutches or canes. The Gettysburg Katalysine Water was prescribed by Dr. Huber, and its use for some months has relieved my pain, increased the strength and mobility of the joints, and stopped the running sores on my legs, leaving scars several inches in diameter, reaching to the bone, through which have eked during nearly the lifetime of a generation, the vital fluids corrupted by the terrible disease. I feel perfectly assured that the continued use of the water will completely eradicate its remains from my system. Its sensible effects on me were drowsiness and nervousness for som time after using it.

J. A. GRIMES.

GETTYSBURG, Penn., April 9, 1869.

Gettysburg Spring Company:

GENTLEMEN: Having been requested to state what I know of Mr. J. A. Grimes' case, I answer that for the time I have known him, about ten years, he has had ulcers on his arm and leg, caused by necrosis.

He has suffered during that period from subject to chronic rheumatism, with occasional sub-acute attacks.

About eight months since I advised him to take the Gettysburg Spring Water for the last-mentioned disease.

I have to-day seen him, and find the ulcers healed, and his general health much improved.

Very truly yours,

H. S. HUBER, M. D.

Complication of Female Affections—Consumption.

I visited, at the instance of Dr. Smith, Superintendant of the Gettysburg Katalysine Springs, Miss M——, of Williamsport, Md., a young lady, whom he informed me had been brought to the Springs for treatment with its waters. I found her the victim of an apparently hopeless complication of afflictions. She could not walk or even stand erect. She had to be carried about like a child by her servants, owing to extreme debility and pain. She had a cough which had been pronounced by some of her former physicians consumption. I soon ascertained that her malidies had their origin in certain irregularities and ailments peculiar to her sex and age. For though so terribly afflicted, she was only out of her teens.

Her first attack dated five years back, recovering at intervals with greater or less severity, until it reduced her to her present apparently hopeless and helpless condition.

The joints of her fingers, toes and limbs were enlarged by urates, or chalky deposits. I agreed with what I understand to be the opinion of her former physicians, that she had nothing to expect from ordinary medical treatment, and advised the continuance of the water of the Spring.

Though well acquainted with its reputed virtues, I was hardly prepared for the wondrous transformation it effected in the condition and appearance of this invalid. In thirteen days she was enabled to walk with but little assistance from her servant, and improved so rapidly in all respects that she now appears to be permanently cured, being relieved from the cough, general debility, pain and the irregularities referred to. Also, of the enlargements or chalky deposits around the joints. When sae came to the Spring, she only weighed 81 pounds, she now weighs over 90 pounds.

From a pale, sickly-looking, dispirited, decrepid invalid, she has emerged, as from the chrysalis state, into a young lady in the bloom of health, youth and beauty.

A. B. WIKAVEN, M. D.

P. S.—The water, in this instance, was usually brought to her whilein town, where she was stopping.

Paralysis—A Modern Miracle.

The following account of one of the wonderful cures with this water is given by one of our public journals, and is, I am assured, entirely authentic and reliable. It says, of an invalid: Stricken down some years ago by paralysis, he got worse instead of better under the best medical treatment and under the influence of some of the much-landed mineral springs of the day. A few weeks ago he was pronounced by a number of distinguished physicians one of the most hopeless victims of a complication of incurable maladies which had ever fallen under their notice, or of which medical writers had taken cognizance. He was not only confined to his bed, but has been for years unable to turn upon it or execute any voluntary movement except feebly with his arms and neck. He was destitute of sensation in the lower part of his body and limbs. To this paralysation was added diabetes or kidney derangement, supposed by some of his medical attendants to be albuminuria, or Bright's disease.

Such was the affliction and condition of this man when Dr. Hall, of West 54th-st., New-York, prescribed for him the Gettysburg Katalysine Water. After taking only five bottles of this fluid he was able to rise from his living tomb and walk about his room, and by its continued use has recovered his sensation in every part of his system, and is able to keep up for some time, and, with the aid of an attendant, to go down stairs and remain the greater part of the day. Diabetic and albuminous symptoms are arrested, and he has every prospect of ultimate complete recovery.

Heart Diseases.

The cures of heart diseases with this fluid are wonderful. Perhaps the following letters may help to explain them:

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July, 1868.

GENTLEMEN: Your water, the "Katalysine," has suggested itself to me since its introduction in this place as a remedy in a class of affections for which it is not recommended by you, viz.: Diseases of the Heart. I have recently written an article for the American Journal of Medical Science, in which I take the ground, not heretofore advocated that I know of, that neuralgia of the heart, (angetra pectoris,) and, in fact, nearly all the functional diseases of that organ, arise from acid in the circulation; that the ossification of the coronary arteries, and other vessels entering the heart, sometimes met with after sudden death from angetra pectoris, and the concretions sometimes met with in the valves of the heart are due to the same cause—analogous in its causative action with the deposits met with in the gall, bladder and kidneys, and those met with in the joints of gouty and rheumatic patients—and that the proper remedies are Alkalies.

T. WILLIAMS, M. D.
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 17, 1869.

Gettysburg Spring Company:

GENTLEMEN: I have tested the Gettysburg Katalysine Water, bottled by you, and I have no hesitation in pronouncing it very efficacious in most chronic diseases. As an alterative, its excellence and range of usefulness when properly employed is perhaps unsurpassed. I have prescribed it in a number of the diseases for which it is recommended with satisfactory results, and in one for which it is not recommended by you, viz.: Neuralgia of the Heart,—with so far a very favorable effect. For the enlarged liver and spleen of malarious regions it is peculiarly suited. Respectfully,

T. WILLIAMS, M. D.

Change from Childhood to Puberty.

NEW-YORK, Dec. 5, 1868.

Gettysburg Spring Company:

GENTLEMEN: With the particulars of the case of Miss A. C. I am fully acquainted.

The symptoms most prominent were a lack of vitality in the natural effort of change from childhood to puberty.

There can be no doubt that the healthful, and in a manner general stimulus of her vital powers were wholly due to the use of the Gettysburg Katalysine Water. I shall always prescribe its use when a similar indication shall warrant.

I am, gentlemen,
Yours, respectfully,
DAVID WATSON, M. D.

This young girl, aged 14, was weakly, puny, had granulated sore eyes, contracted in form, generally debilitated, &c., in this unreal life cases.

The use of the water for three days threw her out in a rash like scarlatina, with headaches, &c.; disconinued use of water couple of days, and then began again, and for some three or four weeks could not use the water larger than wineglassfuls at dose—because two or three larger doses would produce a species of headache; after use of water for two or three months, a wonderful change had taken place—and her relatives noticed it—her chest, limbs and lips developed, and her eyes perfectly recovered and brightened.

Its Efficacy with Children.

The incident described in the following letter is full of instruction to the mothers of America, many of whom are now murdering the babes of drugging their offspring with poisonous drugs and medicines while yet in their cradles. The writer is a son of the wealthy banker, Mr. George Swope, of the town of Gettysburg. Though not now practicing his profession, he is a regularly educated physician, whose testimony is above reproach or suspicion:

The Gettysburg Spring Company:

DEAR SIRS: Permit me to call your attention to a property of the "Gettysburg Water" not generally known.

Some time since I gave to a child four months old some of the water to drink, simply because it was the most convenient at the time, as the child had been in habitual fever of considerable duration, never having a passage unless as the result of an injection. I was greatly surprised to find that an operation had been obtained without such necessity. I instituted a series of experiments upon the child and myself, to satisfy myself whether this result was purely accidental, or due to the Katalysine Water.

During a period of three months I alternated this water with ordinary hydrant water. Where the latter was used a syringe became necessary, but, when returned to the Gettysburg Water, the result was invariably, and continues to this day, a free evacuation of the bowels. Were the facts are "stubborn things," and not easy to be controverted, I would really feel some hesitation about mentioning another result of my observations; but, that the public may readily detect the difference between hydrant and this water, rejecting the former, and soon after drinking freely of the latter.

I frequently tried them both at the same temperature, (the only condition requisite in the experiment,) and always with the same result, and have no doubt but that the very delicate palate of the child enabled it to detect a difference not perceptible to more obtuse organs. (The Katalysine tastes like common water.)

I give you the result of my personal observations in the hope that a more extended experience on the part of other observers will fully confirm the fact as above stated, and establish this additional therapeutic property of the water.

I remain, very respectfully yours,
A. SWOPE, M. D.,
No. 344 West Lombard-st.

A Restorer of Beauty.

Instances of its having improved the physique of both sexes, where there existed little or no sign of functional derangement, are frequent. Let us refer to the memoranda and correspondence of the Gettysburg Spring Company. One instance of this effect has fallen under my own observation in the City of New-York; it was that of a young woman 22 years of age, whose sallow complexion, dull eyes, and indifferent animal spirits presented a painful contrast to what appeared to be directly opposite mental and moral qualities. This young lady has so completely transformed by the use of this water in the course of a few months as to be scarcely recognizable. The rosebeate has appeared in the pale cheeks, and the diamond light in the lack lustred eyes, with a corresponding flow of animal spirits. This young lady's lease of life had been virtually renewed by the renewal or addition of those personal charms so highly prized by the sex.

Other instances of the extraordinary effects of this water upon the apparently healthy constitution are referred to. These instances would seem to suggest previously unknown alterative power over normal physiological conditions, but enough has been said to direct medical inquiry and experiment in this direction.

The purely restorative effects of this water are more intelligible, but not less wonderful. Not only does it restore the functions impaired or impeded in one of the vital powers, but counteracts the effects of those causes which impair or paralyze them.

Health-Preserving Qualities.

Health-preserving and health-restoring virtues are ascribed to nearly all medicinal Springs, and are, no doubt, possessed by some extent, but not to the extent disclosed by practical experiment with the Gettysburg Katalysine Water. We are here presented phenomena which it is difficult to analyze or explain, except on the hypothesis that this fluid bears some mysterious relation to the vital forces or principle.

The evidence establishes beyond any reasonable doubt, that by the judicious use of this fluid persons may do away entirely or temporarily those things which try the constitution, and which would ordinarily break down and destroy health and spirits—as for instance over mental and physical exertion, excessive use of alcoholic stimulants, or intemperate, tobacco, &c., &c., indulgence in any of the natural passions. The sporting men of New-York have ascertained this fact, and have become large consumers of the Gettysburg Katalysine Water for that City.

Perhaps there is no course of life, not excepting that of the soldier in active service, which so taxes the human constitution, as that of the turf of fortune and skill by a game of cards, whether pursued for amusement or for speculation.

The fierce excitement anddread suspense, the despair or elation of success or defeat, the loss of sleep, and the almost indispensable use of alcoholic stimulants, all combine to overtask and exhaust the physical strength, and render recuperation each time more and more difficult. This class of persons have found the Gettysburg Water an almost necessary auxiliary to overtasked nature, and have in this City consumed over 2,000 cases of this water during the past year.

A correspondent of the Gettysburg Compiler describes some of its effects on the healthy human system. He says:

"But I received the most remarkable confirmation of my own experience in this matter, in the testimony of a gentleman whom I met at the Springs the other day. It was to the effect that for two years, this water constantly during the last two years, that when he commenced its use he was in the enjoyment of his usual health, but was sallow-complexioned, lantern jawed, and nothing to boast of in appearance. The influence he had developed into the really fine specimen of the physical man which he presented, that all his acquaintances testified that he was apparently ten years younger instead of two years older, than when he began to drink this water; and that he knew himself that he was stronger, was in better spirits and mental condition than he ever was before, though he was then forty years of age. He really asserted that the water sometimes disagreed with him for awhile, usually at the change of the seasons, or when he had been using it for a time he then reduced the dose, or discontinued it for a time."

The editor of the New-York Medical Record thus describes some of the prophylactic and restorative effects of this water while they fall under his observation. In his article of the 1st September, already referred to, he says:

"From experiments made on our own person as well as others, we can state that the Gettysburg Water is a regulator of all the secretions and excretions; under its influence the kidneys and liver, the glands of the intestinal canal and the skin, all perform their normal functions; the bowels, if constipated, become regular; the skin, if dry, becomes moist; the torpid liver is excited to healthy action, and the kidneys perform their functions with perfect regularity. There is a total absence of any disagreeable sensations whatever; the vis medicatrix seems roused to increased activity, and all morbid causes of bodily or even mental disorder are more readily taken away. The result is increased appetite and digestion, a freer circulation, a stronger pulse, a calmer mind, a more tranquil sleep, a clearer complexion and an increasing nervous and muscular power."

Will this Water Prolong Life?

These exceptional restorative and physiological effects of this fluid have suggested the theory that its judicious and persevering use might prolong human life beyond the usual period of duration. History and tradition have distributed over the globe healthrestoring and life-prolonging springs; and it has been hinted by leading public journals that modern discovery and science afforded us another confirmation of the truth of fabulous history in the Katalysine Spring of Gettysburg. These journalists have hardly been serious in their intimations, and yet they have not been so far out of the way if the indications of the practical experiment with this water.

I have referred to its extraordinary and unprecedented power over uric acid calculous formations, which suggested the name of the Spring Katalysine, which was compounded by the President of one of our colleges from the Greek work "Kataleno," signifying to dissolve. A medical writer has defined uric acid to be "the result of disintegration of nitrogenized tissues," and if the definition is correct, it is but another name for the dead and waste matter evolved by the human machinery in the production of the vital phenomena.

We know that material mechanisms must be relieved of the debris produced by friction, or that in process of time the obstructions will impair its action and finally stop the machinery. Dying is nothing more than the final cessation of the vital forces, and for relieving the organism of its uric acid and urates. It is only by impairing these vital forces of nature that disease, premature old age and death overtake the race. In view of these facts, is it unreasonable to suppose that this water, by assisting nature to perform promptly these things necessary to perfect and necessary excretory processes, may not only improve the condition of our physical existence, but prolong its duration in the same manner that the watchmaker, by cleaning his delicately constructed instrument, can restore regularity of action and preserve its efficiency much longer than would otherwise be possible?

In corroboration of this theory might be cited numerous evidences of the efficacy of this water in assisting nature to effect those changes of life incident to maturity and decline in both sexes, especially females, and in enabling childhood to resist the antagonistic influences to which it may be exposed by the indiscretion of parents or other causes.

Gettysburg as a Watering Place.

It is proper to remark, in this connection, that all the cures effected by this water have been by internal use alone, and that, too, in many instances, long after its removal from the Spring; while all those reported at ancient or modern Springs were effected by external, as well as internal application of their waters, and invariably by their use at their sources.

Whether the waters of the Gettysburg Spring are more potent when used at their sources than away from it, is an interesting question, and is likely to receive a solution during the approaching watering-place season.

Many persons predict a refinaction here of the miracles of cure alleged to have been wrought at some of the springs of remote antiquity by sacred and profane historians, but we shall see. The numerous applications to the Company from all parts of the country for accommodations at the Spring have induced them to erect a large hotel near it. The building will accommodate between three and four hundred persons, and will be ready for the reception of guests in a few weeks, when the battle-field of Gettysburg, like that of Saratoga, will become one of our places of invalid and fashionable resort.

The Watering Place Hotel is built and managed by a company, of which Robert McCurdy, of Gettysburg, is President, and R bert G. McCreary, of the same place, is Corresponding Secretary. The hotel will be prepared for the reception of guests before the time appointed for the dedication of the National Cemetery, on the 1st of July, when the military, political and official celebrities of the country are expected to be at Gettysburg, many of them with their families.

The recent difficulties between the Managers and the Proprietors of the Gettysburg Spring have been amicably adjusted, as will appear by the following card:

GETTYSBURG KATALYSINE SPRINGS,
GETTYSBURG, Penn., May 11, 1869.

The undersigned deem it due to the invalid and commercial public to announce that the recent troubles at these Springs have been amicably arranged, and that this medicinal water will continue to be supplied as formerly.

The sommel of the Spring Company and the management have been changed by the late events, but the trade-mark, the bottles and packages remain the same.

The water will hereafter be supplied directly from the Spring, but, for the convenience of the trade, an arrangement has been effected with W. H. H. JONES, by which a depot has been established at No. 5 Murray-st., New-York, where it may also be procured, at the option of the purchaser, in small or large quantities.

It may likewise be obtained from all first-class Druggists throughout the United States. Address

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

A London dispatch announces that it is now definitely ascertained that the rumor of a triple alliance against the United States is without any foundation.

The elections in Paris and Lyons have resulted favorably to the Anti-Imperial candidates, and it is reported that M. ROCHEFORT has been chosen among others. Much excitement is reported in Marseilles, where the crowd shouted "Viva la Republique," and in Paris, but no disturbances of moment.

GENERAL.

The New-Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad was sold by auction yesterday at New-Orleans, by order of the United States Circuit Court, and purchased for $2,050,000 by the representative of Mr. CHARLES MORGAN. It was announced at the conclusion of the sale that the purchaser intended to extend the road to Sabine at once.

The New-England Labor Reform League met in Convention in Boston yesterday. It was largely attended by prominent reformers. The President, in opening the business, defined the labor-reform creed as free trade, free money, free travel, free transportation and free land; and the resolutions presented and discussed denounced, among other things, the taking of interest and the national banking system, and urged the substitution of Treasury certificates of service for the present Government currency.

Some boys have been arrested in Boston charged with the recent robberies of boxes in the Post Office of that city. All the letters belonging to the Suffolk Bank, twenty-five in number, have been found in a cellar unopened; but a valuable letter taken from the box of the Atlantic Bank is still missing.

The establishment of MILLER & Co., maltsters, at Cleveland, Ohio, was destroyed by fire on Monday night. The loss is $25,000; insurance, $5,000. The loss was mostly by malt destroyed and damaged. The fire is supposed to have originated from some defect in the kiln.

JOHN WHITE, a prominent produce dealer of Cortlandt Village, N. Y., near Syracuse, committed suicide on Sunday night. Cause, pecuniary embarrassment.

The Coroner's jury in the case of R. K. JAMES, of New-York, whose body was found in the woods below Poughkeepsie, on Monday evening, have rendered a verdict of "death from disease of the heart." He had probably been in the isolated spot where he was found over two days.

A one-armed soldier named JACK GILLIGAN, residing at Mill Creek, near Fortress Monroe, while under the influence of liquor, beat his wife to death on Monday evening. He is now in jail.

JOHN TAYLOR, for many years the farmer of DANIEL WEBSTER, died in Salisbury of consumption on Friday last, aged 68 years. He was buried on the Webster farm, in Franklin, on Sunday. Mr. TAYLOR was an intelligent farmer and an upright citizen, and his relations to Mr. WEBSTER were of a gratifying character.

Over $12,000 of the money and bonds stolen from the money delivery clerk of Harnden's Express, in Baltimore, a few days ago, has been recovered, and the two men arrested have been examined and are now in jail. Their names are GEORGE I. HOWARD, alias GRIER, and EDWARD DENNIS. They were arrested by one of the Company's detectives while on the way to Wheeling, and some of the plunder was found on their persons.

A Woman's Suffrage Convention is called to meet at Indianapolis on the 19th of June next. Mrs. LIVERMORE, of Chicago, Mrs. CADY STANTON, LUCY STONE and others are announced as among the speakers to be expected.

It is reported that a couple of whales have just been caught off East Hampton, L. I., each of which will yield forty barrels of oil.

The New-Orleans Commercial Convention was not in session yesterday, and the delegates spent the day in inspecting the mouths of the Mississippi. The Convention will reassemble to-day and proceed to business.

The Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce have voted that hereafter freight on wheat, from all points on the river to Milwaukee or Chicago, will be ten cents per bushel, and on flour forty cents per barrel. This arrangement is the result of a meeting of railway and packet men in Chicago on Tuesday last. An arrangement has also been made by which wheat will hereafter be carried from Chicago to Liverpool, via New-York, for thirty cents by rail and twenty-two cents by lake and canal, including all expenses of handling.

A tunnel, similar to the Chicago tunnel, for supplying the City of Cleveland, Ohio, with pure water, is to be commenced there immediately. It is to cost about $300,000.

The retail liquor dealers of Indianapolis, Ind., have agreed to close their saloons on Sundays, and have pledged themselves to see that all other business prohibited by the Sunday laws is stopped on that day.

As the steamer Russia, from Liverpool, was coming up the Bay this morning, she ran into the Austrian ship Foglia Maggiore, from Marseilles, which arrived on the 24th, and was lying at anchor off Bedloe's Island. The ship was struck on the port side and sank in a few minutes, and now lies submerged in water reaching up to her lower yards. The steamer was in charge of a pilot at the time. No lives were lost.

A lecture upon the East was delivered last evening by Bishop SOUTHGATE, at the Church Union Rooms, No. 1,155 Broadway. It dwelt more particularly upon the oppression of Christians in Turkey.

The corner-stone of the Collegiate Dutch Reformed Church, at the junction of Fifth-avenue and Forty-eighth-street, was laid yesterday by Rev. Dr. THOMAS DE WITT, with the usual addresses, hymns and prayer. Rev. Drs. CHAMBERS, LUDLOW and MCNAIR were present, together with a numerous assemblage of both sexes.

The National Woman's Suffrage Association met yesterday, at 2 o'clock, at the Woman's Bureau, No. 49 East Twenty-third-street. A number of new members joined. Miss SUSAN B. ANTHONY delivered a short address, and announced that Miss ANNA DICKINSON would deliver a lecture upon Woman Suffrage on Friday evening next, at the Cooper Institute, under the title of "Nothing Unreasonable."

A meeting for the election of officers in the Second Assembly District of the Union Republicans was held at No. 275 Pearl-street yesterday evening. Reddy the Blacksmith and his gang had matters all their own way—the Republicans having withdrawn.

The firm of SCOTT & MUNSON, storage merchants, of No. 91 Wall-street, were represented yesterday as having absconded on Saturday last with $65,000 in their possession, the proceeds of a secret sale of 75,000 bushels of oats which were placed in their stores in Brooklyn by different parties.

General GEORGE B. MCCLELLAN has written to the Committee of arrangements for decorating the soldiers' graves at Elizabeth, regretting his inability to attend the ceremony, but assuring them of his sympathy in the rendering of all possible honor to the memory of the noble men who gave their lives for the country in the recent war.

The Collegiate North Reformed Dutch Church held its one hundredth anniversary yesterday. Exercises were conducted in the morning and evening. Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. THOMAS DEWITT, Chancellor FERRIS and others.

Another extensive petroleum conflagration occurred at Hunter's Point, L. I., at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The refineries of Messrs. DEVOE & Co. and DAY & Co. were both entirely consumed. The loss can not be far from $500,000.

Cotton was quiet and heavy yesterday. Flour dull and drooping. Wheat a shade firmer, but tamer. Corn active at advanced prices. Oats much lower and slow of sale. Provisions attracted less attention; Pork and Lard closed in favor of purchasers. Groceries were in moderate request; cargo prices of Rio Coffee and quotations for Refined Sugars were a fraction lower. Petroleum was more freely offered and purchased at easier rates. A moderate Freight business was reported.

Our Trouble with England—Mr. Sumner's Speech—The Administration.

The English people have made a strange mistake in giving so much significance to Mr. SUMNER's speech. They seem to regard him as the leader of a party, or as speaking diplomatically in behalf of the Cabinet. They give to his utterances the importance that might be attached to a speech of Lord PALMERSTON or of Mr. GLADSTONE, when one of those statesmen was at once the leader of a party and the head of a Cabinet. Mr. SUMNER, while he fairly and definitely gives utterance to the deep sense of injustice, and to the yet slumbering feelings of indignation justly aroused in the American mind by conduct of the higher classes of the English people, and to a large extent by their Government, during our struggle, is not the leader of a party; he did not speak diplomatically, and he did not assume to speak for the Cabinet, or to define its position. He does not officially or otherwise represent the Government. Nor are the English people much less mistaken in the inferences which they draw from the rejection of the Alabama treaty, which followed the delivery of Mr. SUMNER's speech. The question before the Senate was simply whether the treaty, so hastily negotiated by Mr. JOHNSON, amid so much dinner-party speech-making, most of which was not suited to our national taste or mood, had made proper provision for the adjustment of the matters embraced in it and in dispute between the two nations; and, further, whether there were not other such matters which were really not embraced in the treaty. Mr. SUMNER briefly explained that, as to some matters embraced in the treaty, the provisions for their settlement were not satisfactory or practical, and that some of the grave matters of principle involved in the discussions between the two nations were not embraced at all in the treaty in a way to secure a decision: and hence concluded that it was better that a more carefully-considered and comprehensive treaty should be negotiated and this one be abandoned. Here Mr. SUMNER could of course have stopped; and it is noticeable that as to such portions of his speech, the English journals are not able to find any just ground of complaint. But he did not stop; and the Senate continued to listen.

Mr. SUMNER is an orator, with a strong American heart and head, and he felt, as many—indeed, nearly all Americans,—felt, that the career of Mr. JOHNSON in England had done not a little to give an impression that we had lost our earnestness, if not our self-respect, and that we were not, after all, very much resolved to have our rights in regard to the Alabama and other matters in dispute; he believed that the occasion called for a review of the facts; and he reviewed them in strong language, not at all selected to please John Bull. He told him many unwelcome truths, and he did not adopt John Bull's reasoning in defence of the injury he did us; nor did he say or intend to say all that could be said on John Bull's side of the question. The Senate thereupon proceeded to vote on the merits of the treaty, and not on Mr. SUMNER's speech, nor on his theory of national nuisances or of special damages resulting from such nuisances. This vote left the diplomatic question just where it was before REVERDY JOHNSON ate a dinner or made a speech in England. And General GRANT and his Cabinet in due time will take up the question precisely where Mr. ADAMS left it, with the conceded duty of England to submit to arbitration added; and they are abundantly able and disposed to do justice to our national rights and dignity, as well as to the claims of our citizens for individual losses; and there is no ground for any solicitude or commercial perturbation by reason of the rejection of this treaty.

Mr. SUMNER's speech has several sides. One is that of patriotic sentiment and a national sense of wrong. Another states what is his theory of the damages he thinks an arbitrator ought to give, and what the English Lairds and Roebucks and Winchelseas ought to pay. Still another asserts his idea of the apology the English Government ought to make, if decided to be in the wrong in the light of international law as the guide of national obligations.

But let us look at these things in their proper order, and not confuse them. The patriotic sentiment and the swelling utterances of just national indignation, are only adapted, and were intended, for home use, and cannot be put into a treaty. We cannot ask any damages to be paid until we get a decision in our favor; and the treaty rejected provided, and the treaty to be made must again provide, for a reference of the question to be decided to somebody; and from its decision in our favor, and not from our claims alone, these damages must come, if they come at all, as we feel justly confident they will. Besides, in a suit or on arbitration, we do not provide beforehand what the damages are to be—as, for instance, in case of one of Mr. SUMNER's nuisances—such as a bull breaking into china-shops, or a flaming steam-tug set adrift in a harbor full of shipping;—but we leave the assessment of damages to the tribunal which decides whether the wrong alleged was really committed, and whether the defendant is liable at all to the plaintiff. Hence it is plain that all he says about the measure of damages, whether well founded or not, is not proper matter to go into the pleadings, or the submission, or the treaty, as facts admitted, but are matters to go into the verdict or finding, when we get one in our favor. Again, suppose England is to make such an ample apology as would fully satisfy Mr. SUMNER; or to take the English version—suppose Queen VICTORIA is to come over here, clad in sackcloth and sprinkled with ashes and leading her progeny in chains; it is yet tolerably clear we cannot demand the apology, or fairly expect the Queen's arrival before the decision in our favor is actually rendered, and probably must wait till we get a certified copy of the document providing for all that is to be done.

Now, a cool consideration of all these matters would have saved our English neighbors a good deal of very undignified and unnecessary heat and alarm, and may prevent some of our own people from committing themselves to very impracticable expectations and saying some very foolish things.

The more the matter is looked at, the more clearly it will be seen that the rejection of the Johnson treaty amounts to only this, that its provisions were not adequate, in the estimation of our Government, to carry into effect a mode of redress upon which the two nations have agreed. Certainly Mr. SUMNER's speech was not intended to be approved as a basis of negotiations, or as a national demand of redress, but was considered a proper assertion of the national feeling, and of the reasons why this Alabama treaty should not be ratified; and it is equally clear that the real questions at issue between the two nations, freed as they were of most of the elements of real danger, by agreeing on arbitration as a means of settlement, are now left for further negotiation at the proper time, though perhaps not immediately. And when that time shall arrive, it cannot be very difficult to agree upon a satisfactory form of submission, which shall not only provide for the adjustment of damages, but for a settlement of principles. We believe this to be the position of the question as viewed by the Senate and the Cabinet.

Other features of Mr. SUMNER's speech are perhaps calculated to mislead some people. He lays great stress, (as a basis of our claims against England,) upon the recognition of the Southern Confederacy. Certainly that unkind, hasty and harsh act of most questionable right is of consequence as indicating the spirit by which England was actuated; yet no one can fail to see that, as France made the same recognition on the same day, and Spain and other European countries very soon after, we can have no special ground of complaint against England, resting on that act as a primary basis of claim. And on the question of damages, it is at least a matter of grave doubt whether, when the claims of all the individuals of the nation for damages are ascertained and satisfied, there will be any claims left unsatisfied; unless Mr. SUMNER can show some national property seized or destroyed. Besides, is there known to international law any recompense to be made for mere incidental national damage, on the part of one nation to another, except a regret and an apology? We are not sure on this point, and shall await some precedent, which Mr. SUMNER surely can find if any one can.

If there is any pecuniary compensation, we demand that our Government insist upon its being rendered to us by England to the utmost, for England did us an unprovoked, a cruel, and, to her, a disgraceful injury and wrong, for which she ought to make compensation to the uttermost farthing. And we believe General GRANT will accept nothing less.

The agitation in England is little matter of surprise after all. Mr. SUMNER's speech has revived a humiliating and discreditable portion of her national history. She does not like to think of the United States as a Power able to demand its rights, and likely to assert and maintain them if refused. There is always a period, just as the son or the daughter assert and display full equality and a significant tendency to superior power, when the parents hesitate and perhaps lose their equanimity, and forget their dignity, and threaten to do what they dare not and cannot do in view of the changed and still changing relations. England is now in that condition: and a respectful deference and kindness to her mood and her maternal relation, is due from us, her children.

In 1862, when our Minister asked for redress, the demand was not so much as noticed; when the demand was repeated in October, 1863, Lord JOHN RUSSELL omitted to make any answer till Aug. 30, 1865, when he haughtily declined it, with the remark that "Her Majesty's Government declined either to make reparation or compensation for the captures made by the Alabama, or to refer the question to arbitration."

England has come sadly down from that mountain of scorn;—a reference to arbitration has been made;—she is ready now to make compensation;—the only question open is little more than one of details, as to the best means of getting at its amount—an English treaty of arbitration and compensation, unanimously proposed by an English Cabinet has been unanimously rejected by an American Senate! The end is clear and not distant. We are united and strong, with a strong and prudent leader. We should not be surprised at the wrath of the English Press. Let us be prudent and forbearing, firm and just We have peace and shall continue to have it. And we shall have full compensation and an apology as well, in due time.

A Warm Welcome for Mr. Banks.

The news from St. Domingo must be encouraging to Mr. BANKS and the other members of the excursion party for whose expenses he drew three thousand dollars from the House Contingencies' Fund. The Foreign Affairs Committee, as our readers may remember, propose to visit the Dominicans, and talk over with President BAEZ the terms of annexation. Of course the Washington lawgivers calculate upon an enthusiastic welcome. They go to tell the darkies that this country appreciates their anxiety for admission into the Union; and it is assumed, naturally enough, that they will go into ecstacies over the prospect, and will canonize BANKS & Co. as their deliverers. This, we say, is Mr. BANKS' calculation. Only with these anticipations could he reconcile to his conscience the taking of three thousand dollars for a St. Domingo pleasure trip.

And now comes doleful news. Instead of being delighted, the Dominicans are disgusted. They don't want annexation to the United States, and will not have it at any price. They are so incensed against BAEZ for negotiating in its behalf that they are in arms against him, with a fair prospect of driving him into the sea. The case is not one of simple opposition. Advices represent the feeling as one of hatred to the man and his schemes. We have no doubt that the United States will survive the disappointment. It is provoking, certainly, to find a prize beyond our reach which schemers at Washington have described as ready to tumble into our lap; but we shall probably get over the mortification. We have so many blacks to educate and care for in the Southern States that it may be possible for us to get on without St. Domingo. But what will BANKS do? And what will be the fate of his excursion?

The Republican Party in Tennessee.

The unity of the Republican Party in Tennessee is broken at last. The State Convention at Nashville was unable to get beyond the preliminaries of organization. The mere attempt to proceed to vote provoked a disgraceful disturbance, and the delegates were finally compelled to separate without touching the business which had brought them together. A body so torn by personal animosities and partisan dissensions that it could not succeed in electing a Chairman, could not hope to achieve the nomination of a candidate for the Governorship. Each of the two contending factions has a candidate of its own. And as the Democrats have no thought of putting Mr. ANDREW JOHNSON into the field, the contest will be between Mr. SENTER, who became acting Governor when Mr. BROWNLOW was elected to the Senate, and Mr. STOKES, a dexterous politician, who is understood to be more particularly identified with the better class of Republicans.

For this rupture we were not unprepared. Our Knoxville correspondent, in a letter published on Friday last, alluded to the antagonistic influences at work within the party, and indicated some of the considerations that will govern the final result. An election of judicial officers, to be held on the 27th inst., will throw further light as well upon the motives of the contending sections as upon their relative chances of success. For the Nominating Convention, in April, threw overboard two of the three present Radical Judges of the Supreme Court; and these, again, have joined NELSON, of East Tennessee, in the composition of an opposition ticket. The split, which has now extended to the Executive began, then, with the Judges, and, by one of those freaks which pertain to an elective judiciary, the discarded functionaries seem likely to be able to determine the fate of the Republican Party in the Gubernatorial election. Cases are before them involving the power of the Executive to exclude from the registration lists citizens whose title to votes was recognized under the first Franchise law. The question affects the political status of thirty or forty thousand citizens, whom BROWNLOW arbitrarily disfranchised, but whose restoration to the privilege of voting seems more than probable. The two Judges whom the April Convention discarded, despite their orthodoxy, may, by their judgment in these cases, secure for themselves thirty or forty thousand new votes and at the same time contribute materially, to the overthrow of the extremists hitherto dominant.

Indeed, the contest between SENTER and STOKES appears to turn principally upon the policy of disfranchisement. The advantage possessed by the former in the control he exercises over the registration of voters will be curtailed if the Supreme Court render the anticipated decision; but the gain arising from the unchecked management of the machinery of the election will nevertheless be considerable. STOKES, on the other hand, has the fanatical element on his side, and will fight bitterly and energetically. We see no reason to believe that, as a matter of conviction, SENTER is more liberal than STOKES, but expediency is understood to have suggested to the former the desirableness of abandoning the policy of proscription which has too long cursed the State, and of restoring the franchise to the large class now denied participation in the Government. What proportion of the Tennessee Republicans are wise enough to favor the change, we have no means of ascertaining, but it is certain that the whole body of enfranchised Democrats will exert their influence in favor of the candidate who most emphatically pledges himself to the adoption of a liberal policy. Out of the row at Nashville, good may come.

There is a moral in the lesson by which the Republicans of Missouri and West Virginia should not fail to profit. They too have relied upon the disfranchisement of opponents as a means of perpetuating their own party strength. Tennessee reminds them that on this basis party unity cannot be maintained.

Southern Commercial Conventions.

The New-Orleans Convention, following on the heels of the Convention at Memphis, repeats the auguries of returning prosperity to the South and returning brotherhood to the whole Union. It was not enough to unfetter the Mississippi by force, and let it run "unvexed to the sea;" it remained to revive in the Southwest that feeling of interest and "part ownership" in the great river, which the war had interrupted. This "victory of peace" is now, apparently, at hand. The significant mottoes which welcomed the delegates to both Conventions, the mingling in organization and in action of Southern merchants and Northern merchants, of Southern Generals and Northern Generals, have furnished an omen of "reconstruction" more potent than any political shibboleth could have supplied. The commercial prosperity of the country lies at the base of all its material prosperity; when all unite in this, the solution of political problems will become wonderfully simplified.

President Woolsey on the Alabama Case.

We published yesterday morning a synopsis of two interesting lectures, on the Alabama case and the English proclamation of neutrality at the beginning of our civil war, delivered by President WOOLSEY to the Senior Class of Yale College. Dr. WOOLSEY is one of the first authorities in this country on the topics which he discussed and on the general subject of international law; yet he expressed opinions in these lectures which will expose him to the sharp censure and bitter denunciation of every paltry demagogue in the land. He did not think that the recognition of the Confederate Government as a belligerent Power by England proceeded from enmity to the Union, or that it was of necessity a hostile act. He ventured to criticise, with a good deal of sharpness, some of Mr SUMNER's positions and dissented wholly from its general tenor and effect.

President WOOLSEY said he wished it "distinctly understood that he had not been bought up by British gold" to take this view of the case. Undoubtedly he would like to have this believed; but, we presume, he is not rash enough to expect that it will be. How can any man,—any American—of common sense expect to be credited with sincerity in holding such sentiments? How can he possibly hold them, unless he is paid for doing it? GOLDWIN SMITH may,—but he is an Englishman,—"only an American pro tem.," as the Tribune styles him, and lives here only, as is well understood, for the sake of a "fat professorship" and the opportunity of corrupting the sentiments of the ingenuous youth of America. He used to be, when at home, a thorough-going Yankee,—rather more of a Yankee, perhaps, than the Yankees themselves. But he has got over all that, and is now generally known to be neither more nor less than a British spy, though what special thing he is to spy out, or how he is to learn anything except by reading the newspapers, we are not aware.

But for President WOOLSEY to agree with GOLDWIN SMITH on nice points of international law, rather than with CHANDLER and SUMNER and the "war horses" of the mighty West, is something that finds its only explanation in the fact that he has been bought over with British gold. Of course he will deny it;—he could not do less than that. But who will put any faith in his denials?

The aroused indignation of the country must look into this matter. It may be necessary to expel Dr. WOOLSEY from the high position he holds as President of one of the leading colleges of the country, and to put in his place some one more thoroughly imbued with the "true spirit of our institutions," than he is. It must not be forgotten that General R. E. LEE, who commanded the rebel armies, is also Professor of something or other in a Southern college. Are not these coincidences somewhat alarming? It may be well for Presidents WOOLSEY and LEE and Professor SMITH to be packing their trunks and securing passage for some more congenial clime.

The Pearsall-O'Connor Case Concluded.

Judge CARDOZO has been compelled to abandon the false position assumed by him in denying an immediate hearing or a release on bail in the habeas corpus case of PEARSALL and O'CONNOR; and the women have been reluctantly admitted to bail. They will be so released to-day, and we shall hear no more of the matter. The arbitrary, unwarrantable and indelicate conduct of Judge CARDOZO, not only in denying a hearing of the case, but in requesting his brother Judges also to decline examining it, have so aroused public feeling and disgusted the legal fraternity that no attempt will ever be made to bring it up again. The moral of the whole proceeding is that the right of habeas corpus cannot be tampered with even by the Judges of this City.

The closing scene in this case was one of the most remarkable ever witnessed in a court-room. We may also add that it was as infamous as remarkable. The attack by the "friend of the Court" upon the counsel of the women, the speech in the same style of invective by Judge CARDOZO, and the immediate adjournment of the Court in order to prevent Mr. TOWNSEND from making a speech in defence of himself, are incidents of legal practice which we trust are very uncommon in this country. They could occur in no other civilized city than New-York—we trust in no other Court than that of Judge CARDOZO.

St. Thomas.

The Dagbladet, and the Danes in general forget, in their remonstrances regarding the postponement of the St. Thomas Treaty, one of the new ideas working on the American mind. This new idea is that we can annex protect, or "take" all we want of the Western hemisphere, without the trouble and cost of purchase. If we annex Cuba, protect Hayti, and "take" Mexico, the need of St Thomas as a naval station begins to grow less. True, the question of moral obligation or implied contract remains as before—but that is a question to which nations are apt to pay little heed. We fear that, after all, General RAASLOFF will best find his account in urging the material advantages to be derived from the acquisition of St. Thomas. The London Daily News very well said of the Danish Islands that, "Lying at the very gate of the Caribbean Sea, the Power which holds them will bestride the highway from Europe to the Isthmus of Panama, and command its communications with Mexico, Central America, and the whole West Indies." The London Review remarked that it was "a really important acquisition," far more so than Russian America. And the truth probably is that, if we really must have a naval port in the Gulf, this of St. Thomas will cost less, in the long run, than any others we have fixed our eyes upon. The sum we should pay outright for this spot would perhaps prove to be less than the costs entailed upon us by some other regions which we might "annex" or "protect" apparently for nothing.

MINOR TOPICS.

A series of earnest resolutions in regard to the "maintenance of peaceful and friendly relations between the two great Protestant Powers" of the world, were yesterday adopted by the General Assembly of the Old School Presbyterian Church. All the churches of this country were exhorted to offer fervent prayers to Almighty God for peace, and an affectionate appeal was made to the Christians of Great Britain to "join in like supplications to our common Father in Heaven."

Yesterday was a day of "accidents" in this vicinity. There was a steamboat collision on the East River. There was another collision off the Battery in which the steamship Russia ran down and sank a ship just arrived from Marseilles. There was a boiler explosion at the foot of Wall-street. There was an immense petroleum fire at Hunter's Point. There was a suicide, in which a rich Fifth-avenue gentleman was the victim. Then, as regards the catalogue of murders, outrages, and so forth, the reader must be referred to our local columns. Altogether, it was a day of moving accidents by flood and field.

One Board of the Common Council has voted an appropriation of $30,000 to celebrate the Fourth of July. The other very properly hesitates. What is the use of so large an outlay of money on so useless an object? The sums appropriated for these celebrations have kept increasing from year to year, and it seems probable that the cost of celebrating our independence will soon largely exceed that of achieving it. Everybody understands that much the largest portion of the whole sum goes to favorites about the City Hall.

Our Washington correspondent informed us yesterday that "the President and his Cabinet are entirely in accord on the point, that a foreign war would be extremely disastrous at the present time." Evidently they have not consulted General BUTLER, or else, having consulted him, they don't agree with him in opinion on this subject.

The World is facetious on a serious subject. It talks about the City Hall Park as "one of the lungs of the City." The World is near enough the Park to be aware of its real character,—of the uses it is put to at night, and of the extent to which it is useful as a respiratory organ. The tubercles that cover its outer edges in the shape of apple and peanut stands, and the general odor of nastiness that pervades it, shows that this "one of the City's lungs" is in a very diseased condition. The sooner it can be cleared of its nuisances and a decent building erected upon it for a new City Post Office, the better for everybody.

We are glad to see that steps have been promptly taken toward giving the public the benefit of the law just passed, incorporating the Hansom Cab Company. We are a little disappointed to find that the money for the enterprise is still to be raised, as we had supposed the passage of the law was secured by parties ready and anxious to put the cabs upon the street. But we have no doubt the money will be forthcoming. The Company has been organized, and subscription books to the stock will be at once opened. Properly managed, the enterprise can scarcely fail of success.

We would like to see the District-Attorney, or the Mayor's Marshal, or the Board of Health, take a step in the direction of enforcing the law passed at the last session of the Legislature, which requires that druggists' clerks, or persons who dispense drugs, shall be qualified for their duties according to the terms set forth in the act. We hear now, as we heard formerly, of ignoramuses and careless lads dealing out the most dangerous drugs, puzzling their heads over prescriptions, and every now and then giving the wrong sort of medicine. As we have at last a law on the statute-book upon this subject let us now have it enforced.

We see that an ordinance is pending in the Common Council forbidding any vehicle from stopping on the track of a City railroad. The railroad companies are thus slowly but steadily achieving the complete ownership and monopoly of what were intended to be public streets,—streets as much the property of one class of the people as another. Year by year we have more railroads crossing Broadway; under this new ordinance, every omnibus, carriage, cart, or other vehicle must await the convenience of the railway cars before passing up or down the main street. The cars, meantime, may stop as often and as long as they please,—thus stopping the whole tide of traffic and travel on our principal streets at pleasure. We shall soon have a City railroad ring which will own the streets as absolutely as the Erie Railroad ring now owns everything and everybody connected with that great work.

It was certainly not the "proper thing" for Captain MILLS of the Police force, to get leave of absence that he might sell tickets for a menagerie in Pennsylvania. But his conduct was rather in violation of taste and propriety, than otherwise offensive. If he be retained on the force after his trial, he ought at least to be warned against indulging in such pastimes hereafter.

Great surprise is expressed by the Commercial that Mr. FISHER, who lost his life by attempting to jump on the front platform of a Broadway railroad car, should have tried to do such a thing when printed orders forbidding it were posted inside the car. If they had been posted outside the car he could have seen them better; or if the Company had enforced their own orders by placing gates on the front platform, so that passengers could not make the attempt; or if drivers would get in the habit of stopping the cars for passengers to get on, there would have been no danger of such an accident. The fact is the printed orders are posted, not to be obeyed, but to screen the Company from blame in case of accident.

A prominent lawyer of Indianapolis has sent us a letter in reference to the recent legislation in Indiana regarding the Divorce laws of that State. He says those laws have not in any way been altered, and that our information on that point was incorrect. The attempt to effect a change was successful in the State Senate, but failed in the other branch of the Legislature, and the law of the State now stands as it was heretofore. It is not surprising that, as a lawyer, our Indiana correspondent upholds the present Divorce law as "not only just, but conducive to good morals." The statute provides that judges shall grant divorces for a certain number of specified causes, and any other cause for which the Court shall deem it proper that a divorce should be granted. This certainly offers latitude enough for dissatisfied husbands and wives, as well as for sharp lawyers and easy-going Judges. The other terms of the law furnish equally simple facilities to all parties concerned. Indiana is determined to be ahead of any other State—even Connecticut—in the freedom of divorce. Whether this indicates an advance or a retrograde movement in civilization, may be open to some doubt.

A superb edition of the works of THOMAS CARLYLE, in thirty volumes, is undergoing publication in London and New-York. We hope the great Scotchman will include in this edition those of his brief letters on philosophical, moral, political and historical questions which have appeared from time to time in the newspapers. There is nothing in his published writings more striking or suggestive than the two letters—one on the "future state," and the other on the character of NAPOLEON—which have recently appeared in our columns. Though Mr. CARLYLE is himself editing the present edition of his works, we hope that his modesty will not prevent him from including such private letters as these in one of the volumes.

The London Times has got a notable dilemma out of an English law-court, and proceeds to toss these United States on the horns of it, with the feelings natural to a representative John Bull in such a case. The United States going in on the right of the Southern Confederacy, and suing Sir PETER TAIT for the value of certain shoddies sent over by JEFF. DAVIS to be made up by the sartorial baronet! Our contemporary evidently looks on this as a false move in an adversary's game, and makes the most of it. It is a puzzling piece of business, and we have an idea our side will not be able to make a pair of pantaloons out of it, while it must be considered as making a game of cross-purposes which will fairly "bother" us all round.

OBITUARY.

General Joseph C. Briscoe.

General BRISCOE, whose funeral will take place to-day at 3 o'clock, from his late residence, No. 39 Lafayette-place, was born in Ireland, at Willmount, County Kilkenny, in 1834. He graduated with distinction at Trinity College, Dublin, and in 1854 came to the United States, where he was connected as civil engineer with many important public works in the Pennsylvania coal fields. At the breaking out of the war he enlisted in the First New-York Volunteers, and from that time till the close of the struggle he remained in the service of the United States. At the battle of Big Bethel he carried the regimental colors and was wounded in the foot. For his gallantry on that occasion he was commissioned a Lieutenant. In KEARNEY's Division he made the campaign of the Peninsula, and while in charge of the construction of one of the forts at Fair Oaks, attracted the attention of that General by the engineering skill displayed in the work. The General appointed him Engineer Officer of the Division, and he served on KEARNEY's Staff till the death of the latter at Chantilly. Afterward Captain BRISCOE was detailed on the Staff of General STONEMAN, and subsequently upon that of General BIRNEY, where he remained—serving occasionally, however, with Generals HANCOCK and FRENCH. When BIRNEY was appointed to the command of the Tenth Corps, he appointed Captain BRISCOE chief of staff, with the rank of Major, and strongly recommended him to Governor CURTIN, who gave him the command of the One Hundred and Ninety-ninth Pennsylvania Volunteers. At the capture of Petersburg, Colonel BRISCOE commanded a brigade, and distinguished himself by the storming of Fort Gregg, for which gallant act he was breveted General. At the close of the war he was appointed President of the Examining Board for officers in the regular army, under the rank of Major. As a gallant and courageous officer he was greatly distinguished. He was wounded many times, and served in nearly all the battles of the Army of the Potomac.

The Gettysburg Medicinal Spring.

We publish in other columns this morning an interesting correspondence relating to the medicinal properties of the spring discovered by some wounded soldiers at Gettysburg, during the progress of the great battle which turned back the tide of rebel invasion from the North. The great importance of the discovery is fully set forth in this correspondence. It will be seen that very high medical authority declares the water to be of incalculable value in the treatment of certain diseases, for which no remedy was once supposed to exist. The testimony of physicians, and of patients who have found relief from the use of this water, is very strong in its favor.

Opera Bouffe at the French Theatre.

Mr. GRAU's opera bouffe artists, after a very successful tour throughout the States, reoccupy the French Theatre from Saturday evening. Their representations will only extend over a fortnight, and will end the season. HERVE's "Chilpéric" will be produced with great magnificence on Tuesday of next week, and Saturday and Monday, "La Vie Parisienne" will be sung. The sale of seats for the first ten nights commences this morning at the theatre and the branch ticket offices.

WASHINGTON.

The Indian Question—General McMahon—The North Pacific Road—A Military Escort for the Engineers Requested—Colored Applicants for Office.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 25.

Only two or three members of Congress are now in the city, and the Departments have settled down to regular routine work. The city is unusually quiet at present, and the only expected events, in a local way, are the forthcoming election in June, and the decoration of the soldiers' graves on Saturday and Sunday next. Saturday will be observed as a Government holiday, and the banks, and business men generally, announce a suspension of trade and traffic on that day.

THE INDIANS.

The accounts from the Indian country for some time past have not been of a very cheerful or encouraging character, and the latest advices from that section express grave apprehensions of serious trouble during the Summer. The Indians are very much discontented, but it is expected that the promptitude with which the Commissary and Quartermaster stores are being hurried forward will allay the dissatisfaction. The recently appointed Agents and Superintendents will be on the ground in a short time, and the Department is in hopes of being able to take such measures as will prevent an Indian war during the Summer.

THE WHEREABOUTS OF MINISTER M'MAHON.

No intelligence whatever has been received at the State Department from Minister McMAHON for some time past. Information was expected by the Mississippi, but none has reached here yet. Ex-Minister WASHBURNE, who is in the city, is of the opinion that General McMAHON has been killed.

THE NORTH PACIFIC ROAD.

Mr. THOMAS H. CANFIELD, the General Manager of the North Pacific Railroad, had an interview to-day with General SHERMAN on the subject of obtaining a military escort for a surveying expedition of engineers across the continent, to decide on a route for the proposed road. Gen. SHERMAN has not yet decided to grant this request, and will consult with the President and Secretary of War on the subject.

THE SALARY OF MINISTER HARVEY.

Several newspapers are very much exercised relative to the salary of Mr. HARVEY, the late Minister to Portugal. If Mr. HARVEY has not drawn his salary it is his own fault, for the necessary authorization was given by the last Congress.

THE WHITE HOUSE.

There was no Cabinet meeting to-day in consequence of the absence of the President at Annapolis. A large number of strangers who arrived on the morning trains were at the White House, and were considerably disappointed at not being able to obtain interviews.

THE COLORED PRINTER DOUGLASS.

The question of the admission to the Typographical Union of the colored printer DOUGLASS has not yet been settled. In a letter this evening to a delegate to the National Typographical Union, he says that he could not be admitted on account of his color, and that his present application for admission is made in good faith, because he desires to work at his trade in all places wherever it may be profitable. As one of the printers of the country he wishes to have part and parcel in whatever legitimate societies they may organize for the benefit of the craft.

COLORED APPLICANTS FOR OFFICE.

The colored people are becoming as clamorous for office as their white brethren, and scarcely a day passes that does not bring two or three applications for positions to the different departments. They appear to have singled out Commissioner DELANO in particular, for within a week he has received a large number of letters from different sections of the country on the subject. J. M. LANGSTON, of Ohio, urges the appointment of a colored friend of his to a clerkship in the Bureau at Washington.

PERSONAL.

Secretary FISH received a large number of his friends this evening. Nearly all the members of the different foreign Legations in town attended.

Major JAMES H. SMITH, of Chicago has been appointed Judge Advocate vice DENNIS removed.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 25.

OFFICIAL VISITORS TO WEST POINT.

The following gentlemen compose the Board of Visitors appointed to attend the annual examination at the Military Academy, which commences on the 1st day of June next: General David Hunter, U. S. A.; General W. Q. Gresham, of Indiana; General John Eaton, Jr., of Tennessee; Hon. B. F. Loan, of Missouri; Judge C. H. Warren, of Massachusetts; Dr. M. B. Anderson, President of the Rochester University, New-York; Rev. R. L. Stanton, D. D., President of the Miami University, Ohio.

THE INDIAN COMMISSION.

The Commission to meet here to-morrow consists of eight gentlemen who were appointed by the President, in pursuance of the act of Congress to consult and advise as to the proper mode of expenditure of the $2,000,000 appropriated for the benefit of the various Indian tribes, at the last session.

REGISTRATION IN VIRGINIA.

The following are the officers assigned to duty in connection with the registration and election in Virginia, and ordered to report at once to General CANBY:

The officers of the Seventeenth and Forty-fourth Infantry who may be left out in the consolidation of those regiments, and who have not been assigned to other duty: Brevet Brigadier-General J. Hayden, Brevet Colonel L. C. Bootes, Brevet Brigadier-General David B. McKibbin, Major John M. Goodhue, Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel R. G. Lay, Captains D. Van Salzar, and Charles M. C. Lord; Brevet Lieutenant-Colonels O. H. Higbee, Garside, Mallory, R. L. Kilpatrick, D. P. Lee, Geo. S. Gallupe, C. A. Hastrack, and E. B. Knox; Brevet Majors Henry F. Brownson, Hezekiah Gardner and G. Van Blucher; Captains E. H. Liscum, H. M. Smith, M. Thomason, Keneon Robbins, Emil Adam, J. F. Roadlett, J. M. Hamilton, Charles Wheaton, T. L. Baldwin, Charles Snyder, J. P. Schendel, Madison Earle, James S. Tompkins, C. H. Hotsenpiller, Appleton D. Palmer and Henry E. Huzen; First Lieutenants W. J. Ryler, J. K. Milliken, J. H. Whilton, Andrew M. Trowbridge, F. J. Gunn, Elias J. Parsons, G. A. H. Clements, Edward C. Gaskill, Wm. J. Daws, L. M. O'Brien, J. S. Appleton, E. H. Hambnett and Wharton White; Second Lieutenants, A. R. Egbert, F. E. Town, Eugene Pickett and F. Taylor.

DESTRUCTION OF THE OLD CURRENCY PLATES.

The following gentlemen have been appointed by Secretary BOUTWELL a committee to superintend the destruction of the old currency plates and dies at the Treasury Department:

Hon. J. N. Thayer, Hon. George A. Halsey and L. D. Moore, Esq., of the Register's Office; S. Guthrie, Esq., of the Treasurer's Office; Farley Hammond, Esq., National Bank Agent, and A. B. Pratt, of Washington.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC ROAD.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company is making preparations for sending out an exploring party to pass over the entire route from Lake Superior to Puget Sound. THOMAS H. CANFIELD, General Agent of the Company, called on General SHERMAN to-day to arrange for a military escort for a portion of the distance, which will insure a full examination, and enable the Company to determine upon the general character of the line, and place its engineers in the field for a final location of the road.

PERSONAL.

Hon. GEORGE H. PENDLETON was thrown from his buggy in Cincinnati on Saturday, his horse having taken fright, but escaped without other injury than a sprained ancle.

Hon. HUGH MCCULLOCH, Ex-Secretary of the Treasury, and his two daughters, are at home in Fort Wayne, Ind., on a visit for a few weeks.

Ex-President JOHNSON has accepted an invitation to be present at a fair in Clarksville, Tenn., on the 29th inst., and is expected to deliver an address.

A Boston paper reports that Rev. GEORGE W. HEPWORTH is an enthusiastic advocate of a free church, a portion of the pews being let at prices according with the means of pew-holders, and at least one-third of the building free to all comers. Such a church, in Boston, he believes would be made a success, and over such he hopes to minister. It is proposed, if possible, to secure some large hall early in the Autumn, and thus form the nucleus of a free church founded on his idea. It is not probable that he will remain in his present position, but his friends will make every effort in their power to prevent his departure from Boston.

Colonel FRANK N. WICKER, of Lockport, N. Y., has been appointed by Secretary BOUTWELL as Special Treasury Agent for the Sixteenth Customs Revenue District, with headquarters at Sitka, Alaska. This district includes the whole line of coast of Alaska, including the Aleutian Islands, as well as the coast of Oregon and California to San Francisco. Colonel WICKER was the second in command of the Russo-American Telegraph Expedition, and is thoroughly acquainted with the coast and its inhabitants. He will leave this city by the middle of June for his post of duty.

EUROPEAN NEWS BY MAIL.

ARRIVAL OF THE CUNARD STEAMSHIP RUSSIA.

By steamship Russia, which left Liverpool May 15, and Queenstown May 16, reached this port yesterday, with advices later by two days than those at hand by the City of Antwerp:

In the sitting of the Lower House of the Reichsrath, May 14, the President, Herr VON KAISERFELD, delivered the closing speech of the session. He reviewed at considerable length the results obtained by their Parliamentary labors, and said the progress which Austria had made during the last two years was due partly to the continued preservation of peace in Europe, but chiefly to the action of the Reichsrath in pursuing a course of legislative progress and reform. Herr VON KAISERFELD, moreover, thanked the Government for their pacific policy, and referred to their successful settlement of the finances, the reorganization of the army, the compromise with Hungary, and the firm establishment of the Constitution. The House received the President's speech with repeated marks of approval, and at its conclusion three cheers were given for the Emperor. Prince COLLOREDO delivered the final speech of the session to-day in the Upper House. He described the essential laws based on the principle of dualism as the chief fruits of the expiring session.

In the sitting of the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet, May 13, four different drafts of an address in reply to the speech from the Throne were introduced. The Committee's draft welcomes the domestic reforms proposed in the speech from the Throne, and based on the Constitution of 1867. It further expresses a wish for the removal of the present military organization in the military frontier provinces, as well as for the incorporation of Dalmatia with Hungary, and adds a hope for the preservation of peace in Europe. The draft proposed by M. PIZZA on behalf of the Left Centre, and that presented by M. SIMONYI in the name of the Extreme Left, ask for a complete remodeling of the State Constitution and the maintenance of the Constitution of the Comitats. They also condemn the system of the delegations and the unity of the army. M. SIMONYI's draft, moreover, disapproves the treaty of commerce between Austria and Hungary, recommends non-intervention in the East and in Germany, and manifests regret at the exceptional measures adopted by the Government in Bohemnia. The fourth draft proceeds from the Servian party, and is introduced by M. MILATIS. It demands reconstruction in a federative sense, satisfaction of the claims of the Servian nationality, and the fulfillment of the wishes of the Christian population in the East.

At a public banquet held in Copenhagen May 13, General RAASLAEF, Minister of War, confidently expressed a hope that the sale of the Island of St. Thomas to the United States would be ratified by the Senate as soon as the history of the negotiations should be made sufficiently clear. The delay hitherto experienced was to be attributed to the differences between Ex-President JOHNSON and Congress. Mr. SUMNER was in favor of ratification.

According to accounts from St. Petersburg, the continued indisposition of the Emperor ALEXANDER is beginning to cause uneasiness to his medical men. His Majesty, it has been stated, was a few weeks back crossing a bridge in an open carriage with his eldest son, when the horses took fright, and dashing across the footpath were only prevented by the parapet from falling with the vehicle into the river. The shock was, however, so violent that fears were entertained that the Emperor might have suffered some internal injury, and since the accident he has been unwell. On Easter Sunday the usual ceremony of congratulations after the midnight mass had to be omitted. His Majesty was indeed present at the funeral services of the Greek Minister, Count DE METAXAS, and of Admiral MENSCHIKOFF, but on his return to the Winter Palace, was obliged to go to bed. The robust constitution of ALEXANDER II., however, leads to the hope that by proper attention his indisposition may not lead to any serious results. The belief is that the Czar will try a cure at one of the German watering places.

AFFAIRS IN FRANCE.

Napoleon and the Nation—Present Physiognomy of the Capital—Election Prospects—The Rural Constituents and Their Intelligence.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Friday, May 14, 1869.

NAPOLEON III. believes that during his reign he has given to France sufficient of material and social progress to entitle him to the gratitude of his subjects; and he also believes, unfortunately, for in this he is totally mistaken, that he has also given to France sufficient of political and moral progress to entitle him still further to the love and respect of his people.

What, then, must be his disappointment at the present attitude of the intelligent part of the French people? For, of course, he knows as well as anybody that he holds the peasantry by ignorance and the power of the priesthood. What must be his chagrin to see that all that class of his subjects who have access to intelligence, in spite of the Government and the priesthood, that is to say, the residents of the large cities, have turned against him, and savagely cry under his nose that they intend to overturn him whenever they can.

Look at the physiognomy of the capital at the present moment—and Lyons, Marseilles, Bordeaux and Lille are in the same situation. The candidates for the Chamber of Deputies who declare themselves "irreconcilable" to the Empire, who openly avow their determination to overthrow the Empire, who, to quote the words of the eloquent BANCEL, candidate in the Third District of Paris, are determined henceforth to "refuse the presence of ARTAXERXES," are the candidates most applauded by the populace, and appear to stand the best chance of being elected.

What must be the despair of the Emperor after twenty years of manipulation of the position, to find himself obliged, as he is at present, to double and treble the protective force about his person to prevent assassination? And this time they are not Italians, seeking the life of the "murderer" of their country, but Frenchmen, the men he thought he had taught better things.

Little by little the excitement has increased until for two nights past bands of three or four hundred sans culottes have been able to march through the streets singing the "Marseillaise" and the "Lampions," breaking windows and street-lamps and threatening to hang the policemen who offered resistance, to the lamp-posts. Such is the state of effervescence in the dangerous classes that the leaders of the Republican Party are in turn getting alarmed, for they see the bourgeoisie looking on with indifference, if not accepting the terrible propositions of the dangerous classes, so rapidly does the spirit of resistance light up under oppression. In the Seventh District, in which the extreme "Reds" appeared to be carrying everything before them, M. JULES FAVRE, by the advice of the moderate Republicans, who are getting alarmed at the looks of things, has offered himself as a candidate, in the hope of saving the district from falling into the hands of either ROCHEFORT or CANTAGREL, the two "Reds" who held the inside track. So, too, the old fogies of the Republican Party, who were at first opposed to the reelection of several of the out-going Deputies of Paris. CARNOT, GARNIER-PAGES, GUEROULT, EMILE OLLIVIER have at last rallied to their support, for fear that the violence of the men who are opposing them, if elected, would compromise the progressive growth and the future prospects of the Republican Party.

The Government has not announced, and does not probably intend to announce, any candidates for Paris, because ashamed to put on paper the crushing majority that would be cast against them. The Government people even, that is to say, the employes of the Government—for there are no longer any supporters of the Government in Paris but those who gain their living by it—will cast their votes for such moderate Republicans as OLLIVIER, THIERS and FAVRE, in order to keep out the "irreconcilable" men like BANCEL, and ROCHEFORT, and GAMBETTA, and JULES FERRY. Of two evils, they will choose the least.

But the impetus has been given. BANCEL and GAMBETTA, at least, from among the brilliant orators of the Radical Party, will certainly go into the Legislature from some one of the districts in which they are standing for election, and they have promised their supporters here and at Marseilles and at Bordeaux, to demand boldly in the Chamber a change of Government and Constitution. The new generation—for the terrible mob that went singing the "Marseillaise" last evening through the Latin quarter was composed mostly of boys—have had a taste of liberty these last few days, and will not forget it. They tied a policeman to a fence; they threw another one over a fence, and that was enough to start new ideas, and to mark a new era in the minds of men who had not dared to even think of such feats of rebellion for twenty years past.

The whole community will be poisoned by this election, and the revolution this time will not go backward. The Government cannot even hope for indifference. We must have liberty or go back to the horrid repressive measures of 1852—one or the other. It is liberty or the chassepot. It only needed two "tribunes" like GAMBETTA and BANCEL to show the new generation where they stood, and to set their hearts on fire. And if their patriotic appeals for liberty have done no good for the Republic, they will have at least forced the Empire into liberty, for the conservatives of every party now demand this as the only possible issue from the present situation. LOUIS NAPOLEON, with his natural good sense, must therefore move forward and not backword, and we shall look soon to enjoy as much liberty as the surrounding nations.

As a sample of the ignorance of the country people and the dodges resorted to by candidates to catch their votes, here is a circular addressed by M. BELMONTET, a particular friend of the Emperor, to his constituents: "I have lately received a number of petitions addressed to me by certain lark-shooters in my district, and have in consequence made an application in their behalf to the Prefect, from whom I have obtained a prolongation of that sport for a fortnight. They are well pleased, and so am I. Long live the Emperor! L. BELMONTET, Deputy of the Peasantry."

After that we may withdraw the ladder! There is nothing better in the history of electioneering documents. It is a good thing for M. BELMONTET that there is not in his district a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

The States of Colombia—Sinking of the Raye—The Attack upon the Ex-United States Rebel Officers in Carthagena a Year Ago—The Conduct of the Colombian President.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Monday, May 17, 1869.

Our last dates from Bogota, the capital of the Republic, left the Cushing Canal Treaty still under discussion in the Senate, in a modified form. It is not supposed, however, it will be ratified.

There has been a fusion between the Conservatives and the Mosquera portion of the Republicans or Reds, recommended officially by all the Conservatives in Congress, in which it is agreed to support General MOSQUERA, now in exile in Lima, for President of Colombia. This insures the election of the General, unless the military of the present administration are willing and strong enough to prevent it.

One hundred more troops from Bogota arrived at Panama on the 6th inst., making about 250 the national Government now has in garrison here. The supposed object of this inroad upon us is to prevent the State from voting for MOSQUERA.

General CORREOSO, Governor of the State, is still in the Province of Chiriqui, whither he went to adopt measures to conciliate the inhabitants, whom he so lately attacked and subdued with his military. If report, however, speaks true, he is taking a queer way to effect his purpose, for his officers have sprung so many new taxes upon the population that the best portion of it is leaving for Costa Rica and other Central American States.

On the 9th instant the election for Senators and Representatives to Congress took place in this city. Only 125 votes were polled, about 100 of them by the military, who, of course, gave their voices in favor of the Government candidates.

Señor MIGUEL SAMPER, Minister of Hacienda, who signed the Cushing Canal treaty on the part of Colombia, has resigned, as has also Señor PEREZ, Minister of Foreign Affairs. Señor ANTONIO M. PRADILLA succeeds Señor PEREZ.

The question of impeachment of the President of the Republic and his Ministers, recommended in the Committee's report to the House of Representatives, was brought to a solution by the House voting the same to be laid on the table. We have also heard, from a reliable private source, that a later date the House gave a vote of approbation of the Government's conduct in October last in causing the arrest of Governor IGNACIO GUTIERREZ VERGARA of Cundinamarca.

The war steamer Rayo, formerly the R. R. Cuyler, of New-York, and which was purchased by the late Colombian Minister at Washington for Peru, (under the pretence that she was for the Colombian navy,) sunk in the harbor of Carthagena on the 29th ultimo. You will recollect that about a year since some United States rebel officers of the Rayo were attacked in the streets of Carthagena, and one of them was killed and one or two others badly wounded by Colombian military officers and Police. A correspondence on the subject between Mr. SEWARD and President ACOSTA, of Colombia, appears in the Bogota official paper, in which General ACOSTA admits that the persons accused and tried for the crime, were really the assassins, and that they only escaped punishment because of the state of popular opinion at Carthagena among the class from whom the jury were selected. It is worthy of note that the accused, whom General ACOSTA styles "assassins," are now occupying the same positions in command of the State troops at Carthagena that they occupied in the national force at the time of the murders. General ACOSTA undertakes to throw blame on Mr. HANABERG, the United States Consul at Carthagena, because he did not, on the commission of the crime, "make complaint to the authorities, and counsel with them, instead of representing it to the United States Minister at Bogota," when he, ACOSTA, well knows that it was the authorities themselves who instigated the crime, and to counsel with them would have been to counsel with the real assassins. The real fact is—and it would be more manly to confess it—the national Government is completely powerless to redress foreign grievances, when redress is opposed by popular opinion in any of its States.

The small-pox, introduced here, probably, by passengers from San Francisco, and which has carried off hundreds of our negro population the past three months, is visibly decreasing.

The United States gunboat Gettysburg is at Aspinwall. No United States vessel at Panama. The British corvette Chameleon is at Taboga in this bay, with considerable small-pox on board. The British corvette Pylades is here to relieve her.

South America—Excess of Expenditures Over the Revenue in Peru—The Rumors of War with Bolivia—Insurrection Among the Mountain Indians of Guatemala.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Monday, May 17, 1869.

Dates from Valparaiso are only up to the 17th, and from Callao and Lima to the 26th April. The news is of but little interest. In Peru the yellow fever was abating. Some naval officers, among them the notorious MONTERO, had attempted a revolt against the present Government, but were arrested before they could do any harm. The revenue for the year in Peru amounts to $44,000,000, the expenses to $61,000,000. Of the revenue, $32,000,000 is for guano. Government will have to curtail soon, as the good guano is nearly all gone, and the other is nearly worthless.

From Chili there is nothing new, except that the British Steam Company's subvention for running vessels through the Straits of Magellan to Southampton via Montevideo, Rio Janeiro, &c., has been extended to five years.

In Bolivia the yellow fever has disappeared. The President lately ordered a Chilian to be shot for very offensive language used against the said President at a banquet. Rumors that Bolivia is marching on Peru with an army of 12,000 men to revenge some fancied insult, are still rife.

From Guatemala we have dates to the 8th inst., from Salvador to the 11th, Nicaragua to the 12th, and Costa Rica to the 13th. All the States were quiet. Reports, however, obtained that the mountain Indians in Guatemala had risen against the Government. At Acajutla the American schooner Milton Badger was discharging. At La Libertad the American bark Pacific had arrived from Valparaiso, with general cargo. At La Union the American schooner Flora Marble was discharging. At Amapola the American schooner Belle Bond was up for Mexico. At Corinto, Nicaragua, the American bark M. B. Robert was loading sugar and coffee for San Francisco. The American schooner Emilia was at Punta Arenas, Costa Rica.

THE PRESBYTERIANS.

The Proposed Basis of Reunion Rejected by the Old School Presbyteries.

Old School—Fifth Day.

After a half hour of devotional exercises, followed by the reading of the minutes, MARTIN RYERSON, Esq., offered the following resolutions relative to war with Great Britain. Judge RYERSON of New-Jersey, believes that there is danger of some slight matter now so inflaming the minds of our people as to hurry us into a war with England:

Whereas, The existing state of feeling between this country and Great Britain is a cause of profound regret and grief to all who desire to maintain peaceful and friendly relations between these two great Protest powers; and

Whereas, There are no causes of difference but such as ought to be peacefully adjusted, (whilst a war between them would do incalculable injury to the cause of civil and religious liberty, would retard, perhaps for generations, the great work of converting the heathen, and be one of the greatest calamities that could befall our race; and as we believe that a vast majority of our citizens would deplore such a war; and as, above all, it is one of the highest duties of the Christian Church to labor and pray for peace and good will toward men;) therefore

Resolved, That this General Assembly would earnestly exhort all Christians under its care to offer fervent prayers to Almighty God, that He would, by His Holy Spirit, so enlighten and influence the understandings and hearts, and would so guide and control the conduct of the rulers and people of both these nations, that all matters of difference may be amicably settled, and a lasting peace preserved. And this Assembly would affectionately and earnestly appeal to the Christian people of Great Britain and Ireland to join their supplications to our common Father in Heaven.

Resolved, That a copy hereof be sent to the other General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church now in session in this City, with a most respectful request that they unite with us in our efforts to preserve peace between these two Protestant nations, a war between whom might, and probably would, involve the whole civilized world.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Rev. S. MATTOON, from the Committee on Foreign Missions, presented the report of the Board. It is very long and not of general interest. The receipts from all sources have been $338,697 83; the expenditures $343,798 42; leaving a balance against the Treasury of $5,300 60.

Rev. Dr. IRVING, Secretary of the Board, assured the Assembly that great success is now attending the labors of our missionaries.

Rev. Dr. W. A. P. MARTIN, of Canton, China, said the debt of the Board has hung about the neck of the Church as the albatross hung on the neck of the ancient mariner. Let us remove it as MEHEMET ALI has removed the dryness of Egypt. He caused twenty millions of trees to be planted, and has increased thus the number of days of rain by fifteen or twenty. So let every pastor plant a tree to collect the dew and concentrate the clouds of blessing. Our home field is, I know, very important, but every effort for a foreign nation returns in blessings on ourselves. We are soon to have in this land whole nations of Chinese. They will fill up the waste places. Shall they be heathens or Christians? It is for you to say.

In the midst of this discussion on foreign missions the Assembly adjourned, and closed with a prayer by Dr. H. R. WILSON.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Rev. J. K. WIGHT presented a long report on the subject of supplementing ministers' salaries.

REUNION OF NEW AND OLD SCHOOLS.

The Stated Clerk, Rev. Dr. MCGILL, read a report containing the answers of the Presbyteries to the overture of the last Assembly, offering to them a basis of reunion. It was found that the basis prepared by the last Assembly was rejected by a large majority.

EDUCATION.

Rev. Dr. ROBERT HAMILL, Chairman of the Committee on Education, submitted the report of the Board.

A JOINT COMMUNION SEASON.

The Committee recommended the following:

The Committee on Devotional Exercises, through Dr. MURRAY, recommended a joint communion service, on the part of both Assemblies, on Friday afternoon, in this house, at 3 o'clock. The Moderator of the New School body, Dr. FOWLER, to preside, and Dr. JACOBUS to assist him; Sacramental prayer and distribution of the bread by Dr. SPRING; an address by Dr. JAS. H. SHAW; prayer and administration of the cup by Dr. TAYLOR, of Cincinnati; concluding address by Dr. ANDERSON, of Indiana. The following Elders are to take part, viz: J. H. MCCAMPBELL, of Indiana; WM. STRONG, of Pennsylvania; MARTIN RYERSON, of New-Jersey; DAVID HUBER, of California; MORRIS PATTERSON, of Philadelphia, JOHN L. KNIGHT.

The judicial case of HYNES' complaint against the Synod of Illinois was then resumed. This case involves the constitutional point of whether, in churches, the question can be asked once in three years. Are the elders unacceptable?

Pending the settlement of this case, the Assembly adjourned to Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

The New School—Fifth Day.

Rev. Dr. FOWLER, the Moderator, called the assembly to order at 9:30 o'clock.

A POINT OF DISCIPLINE.

Rev. Dr. HENRY DARLING, of Albany, Chairman of the Committee on Church Polity, presented that Committee's report on an overture from the Presbytery of Des Moines, Iowa, asking for information as to a point of discipline. It appears that a church in that Presbytery was dissolved some time ago, and that letters were given to its members allowing them to join any other Evongelical Church they saw fit. One member kept his letter eighteen months, and joined no other Church; the inquiry was, whether, under the circumstances, this member was liable to discipline? The Committee reported an answer in the affirmative, assigning as a reason, that every member was amenable to some Church, and that this particular church having been dissolved, the Presbytery was the proper body to take the matter in charge, and that the member was clearly liable to discipline for not having united himself with some other Church. The report was affirmed.

A NEW SYNOD.

The same Committee recommended that the petition contained in the overture for the creation of a new synod, to be known as the Synod of Kansas, be granted. It is to comprise the presbyteries of Kansas, Smoky Hill and Humboldt. The report was adopted. [Thirteen young graduates of the Union Theological Seminary settled in this region about two years ago. There were there at that time only one presbytery and ten ministers. The Gospel efforts of the young men were so successful, however, that there are now in the same region three presbyteries and twenty-six ministers, and the formation of the new synod is asked for.]

There being no further business on the morning docket, the Assembly then adjourned to 2:30 o'clock P. M., in order to give the Standing Committees an opportunity to report.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon proceedings began at 2:30 o'clock, the Moderator presiding.

REUNION.

Rev. Dr. FISHER, from the Special Joint Committee on Reunion, appointed last year, and composed of five members from each church in the Presbyterian communion, reported that that Committee met at the Mission House in Philadelphia, on the 18th of last April, and resolved that the union among the three branches of the Church is highly desirable, if the way for it be clear. Dr. FISHER then read the following propositions, unanimously agreed to by the Committee, as a basis for the contemplated union:

ARTICLE 1. The Old and New Testament Scriptures are acknowledged to be the inspired word of God, and the only infallible rule of faith and practice.

ART. 2. The Westminster Confession of Faith, as the same has been modified by the churches here represented, in its doctrines concerning the powers of the civil magistrates, together with the larger and shorter catechisms, shall be received and adopted as embracing the system of doctrines contained in the Holy Scriptures.

ART. 3. The United Church shall receive and adopt the Presbyterian form of Church Government.

ART. 4. It is the will of God that the Book of Psalms be used by His Church in His worship to the end of the world, and the united body shall, at the earliest practicable day, prepare as faithful and acceptable a version of those Psalms as may be, for use in the churches. Any of the churches desiring to use the Psalms exclusively, in the service of song, shall always have the right, unchallenged, so to do.

It was then resolved by the Committee that these propositions be submitted to the various assemblies for action, and, if approved by them, that a Committee be appointed from each, to meet in Pittsburg, Penn., on the first Wednesday in August, 1869, to take into consideration such further questions as may be decided in order to a formal consummation of the union of the bodies represented.

The report was referred to the Standing Committee on Reunion.

PRESBYTERIAN PUBLICATIONS.

Rev. Dr. THOS. S. HASTINGS, of New-York, from the Committee on Publication, presented the report of that Committee, congratulating the Church on the rapid advance of the religious publication interests; that in other churches large publishing interests have proved unwieldy; but that, in this body, there is a spirit of harmony which renders such trouble by no means imminent. It urges cooperation on the part of laymen and pastors; refers especially to the claims of Sabbath Schools, and recommends that sub-committees be appointed to better attend to the diffusion of Sabbath-school literature.

The questions involved in the report were debated at some length, but the report was finally adopted.

ECCLESIASTICAL LEGAL MATTERS.

Rev. Dr. WING, from the Judicial Committee, reported on the memorial from T. C. CONNOLLY, of Washington, D. C., as to an act of alleged injustice against a church member of that city, that a report of the whole affair (a civil suit) has been published in the newspapers, and recommend that the memorial be returned to its author, and the matter dismissed. The report was adopted.

Rev. Dr. PORTER was then introduced, and, after a few remarks, presented to the Assembly on behalf of the Reformed Synod a memorial calling for a national council of all Evangelical denominations, to meet in this City in October next.

Rev. Dr. CROSBY moved that the memorial be referred to a special committee of three. Carried. The Chair appointed Rev. Dr. HOWARD CROSBY, of New-York, Rev. Dr. GEORGE H. MAXWELL, of Cincinnati, and Hon. JOS. ALLISON, of Philadelphia, as such Committee.

The hour of 5:30 having arrived, the Assembly adjourned to 9:30 A. M. to-day.

Decoration Day—Letters from General McClellan and Governor Hoffman.

The following letters have been received by the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Grand Army of the Republic:

HOBOKEN, May 19, 1869.

Colonel M. H. Beaumont, Chairman Mem. Ex. Com. G. A. R.:

COLONEL: I have received your very gratifying invitation to participate in the ceremonies in honor of our fallen comrades on the 30th inst. I am truly very sorry that it will not be possible for me to attend, and I beg that you will express to the gentlemen of the Committee my sincere thanks for their kindness in remembering me on this occasion. Although it will not be in my power to be with you on the 30th in person, you may be sure that my thoughts will then be turned to the same subject that occupies you. I am sure that no one participating in the ceremonies can feel a deeper interest in them than I do, for no one can more highly venerate the memory of our fallen comrades or more fully appreciate the grandeur of their services than

Your obedient servant,

GEO. B. MCCLELLAN.

STATE ON NEW-YORK, EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, ALBANY, May 21, 1869.

MY DEAR SIR: I have received the invitation of your Committee to be present and participate in the Floral Memorial celebration and ceremony on the 30th of May inst. I most sincerely regret that the nature of my engagements preclude the possibility of my visiting the city at the time specified. If it were in my power to do so, I should most gladly join you in commemorating the bravery and patriotism of our dead heroes. Living, all that they had to give—courage, high resolve, strong arms, brave hearts—they gave us in our need. Dead, by their example they teach us to be better citizens, to love our country more, to prize more highly all its blessings, to work more earnestly for its welfare and its honor. As full of hope as any now among us, with like ambitions, with all the fire of life and youth still strong within them, those men, loving life not less but country more than we, went from our midst, left home and love behind, and died that their land might live. Once more is history repeated. The yawning gulf that to-day stood so wide before us has closed, but in its depths are hid forever the best treasures of the Republic. To cherish the memory of these patriot dead, to speak their praises, to strew their graves with flowers, brings honor to ourselves, not to them.

Very truly yours,

JOHN T. HOFFMAN.

Captain FRANK H. JORDON, Secretary.

More Small-Pox at Quarantine.

The City of Antwerp, with 1,072 passengers, the Nebraska, with 1,295 passengers, the Kedar, with 670 passengers, and the Ceder, with 265 passengers, have been detained at Quarantine on account of having small-pox on board. The patients, mostly Swedish emigrants, have been sent to Blackwell's Island. No deaths are reported as having occurred on these vessels during the voyage.

The Cuban Insurrection.

It is reported in this City, by well-informed persons, that the Spanish Government will soon issue a decree requesting that all citizens of the realm or its colonies now residing in foreign countries, and who may own property in Cuba, shall, within a stated period register their names with the nearest Consul and take the oath of allegiance to the mother country; and a failure to comply with the order will render all such property liable to seizure.

Farewell Reception.

Last evening the Brooklyn Art Association gave a very pleasant reception at the Academy of Music to Mr. GIGNOUX, the retiring President of the Society, who is shortly to leave the country for a protracted residence in Europe. Mr. GIGNOUX will spend much of his time in Paris in the execution of a large number of important commissions.

The Indiana Divorce Laws not Changed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Saturday, May 22, 1869.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

On the 4th of the present month a friend mailed to me from New-York a printed slip, cut, as he said, from your paper of that date, relative to a change in the Divorce laws of Indiana. Your correspondent was either ignorant of what he was writing about, or purposely deceived you and, perhaps, many of the readers of your paper. The fact is, that the Divorce laws of Indiana have in no way been modified since 1859. The late Legislature passed no act upon the subject of divorces. Bills not unlike those mentioned by your correspondent passed the Senate, but after discussion on their merits, failed in the House. Like a majority of the late House of Representatives, the writer of this believes the Indiana law relative to divorces to be not only just, but conducive to good morals. That judgments in divorce cases are often obtained fraudulently cannot be denied; but are not judgments in many other cases often procured in the same way? If men will do wrong, does it necessarily follow that the law is at fault?

The following are the causes laid down in the statute for which divorces shall be granted, viz.: adultery; impotency; abandonment for one year; cruel treatment; habitual drunkenness; conviction, subsequent to marriage, of an infamous crime; and any other cause for which the Court shall deem it proper that a divorce should be granted. It will be observed that the statute requires the Court to grant divorces for the causes above mentioned, and for any other cause, &c. This provision gives a discretion to the Courts which many of the Judges exercise very liberally toward petitioners for divorce. For example, one Judge may regard intemperance on the part of a husband sufficient cause for granting a divorce on the application of the wife, though such intemperance should fall far short of "habitual drunkenness." Failure on the part of the husband to make suitable provision for his family, has been deemed a sufficient cause. So, when the wife neglects her offspring, and household duties. In short, divorces will be granted for almost any cause, which is of itself sufficient to make the married life of the petitioner an unhappy one, especially where the evidence shows there is no probability of change or reconciliation.

The cause for divorce need not have occurred in this State; it may be sufficient if it occurred in a foreign State, where the parties resided. (10 Ind., 436.)

Although the party applying for a divorce must be a resident, &c., at the time of filing his complaint, it is not necessary that he should be a resident at the time of trial. (18 Ind. 448.)

As to the effect of our Divorce laws upon public morals, it is, I think, enough to say that South Carolina, the only State in the Union where a divorce has never been granted, found it necessary to enact a law regulating how much property a man should give his concubine. A learned South Carolina Judge from the Bench said: "In this country, where divorces are not granted for any cause whatever, we sometimes see men of excellent character unfortunate in their marriages, and virtuous women abandoned or driven away houseless by their husbands, who would be doomed to a life of celibacy and solitude if they did not form new connections which the law does not allow, and who make excellent husbands and wives still." That is in South Carolina a husband or wife who can not be legally divorced may separate, form unlawful connections, and still be virtuous wives and husbands.

Truly yours, &c.,

EDWIN A. DAVIS,
Attorney at Law, &c.,
Indianapolis, Ind.

At an early hour yesterday morning a fire occurred in the basement of No. 68 Broad-street, occupied by Messrs. SMITH, WHITE & WOOD, dealers in tin ware, who sustained a loss of $1,000, insured in the Niagara and Globe. The first floor is occupied by B. LAWRENCE & CO., dealers in liquors, who sustained a loss of $500; insured. The building is damaged to the extent of $500; insured.

Hagan's Magnolia Balm.

This article is the true secret of beauty. It is what fashionable ladies, actresses and opera singers use to produce that cultivated, distingué appearance so much admired in the circles of fashion.

It removes all unsightly blotches, redness, freckles, tan, sunburn and effects of Spring winds, and gives to the complexion a blooming purity of transparent delicacy and power. No lady who values a fine complexion can do without the Magnolia Balm. 75 cents will buy it of any of our respectable dealers. Depot, No. 21 Park-row, New-York.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Yesterday was another dull day at the salesroom, but three sales were made, and they were quite unimportant. City sales are almost ended for the season, but in the country they will be held for some time to come. Some of the auctioneers' books contain particulars of sales yet to be made, extending almost to the first of July. Many of them are not yet advertised, in fact the arrangements are not in all cases yet completed, but they are rapidly being finished, and in due time the public will be informed of them. The suggestions made in the TIMES of Monday last have attracted the general attention of landowners, and will have a good effect. The auctioneers have long understood the little annoyances attending almost every out-of-town sale, but it was difficult to convince the owners. They, in many instances, having never seen a country sale before their own, did not understand the attention to detail necessary to the entire success and pleasantness of such sales, and thought the extra expenditure quite unnecessary. This, of course, does not apply to all cases; there have been some few honorable exceptions. But there is room for improvement for them all. Owners, before they try a sale, should make up their minds to follow implicitly the advice of their auctioneers, who, from their greater experience, must best understand what should be done. They must also understand that it is absolutely necessary to expend a considerable amount of money. Advertising, printing, bill-posting, lunch, car-fare, &c., &c., must be paid. A false economy here is foolish; a few dollars saved gives the whole affair a skimped and beggarly appearance. People go to it with the idea that it is a cheap arrangement throughout, and bid accordingly. If, though, the advertising is well and prominently done, the lunch good, and the other matters liberally attended to, the property gains additional value in their eyes, they see it through more pleasant glasses, and the bidding is generally good. Some of the sales previously held have been very creditable to both owners and auctioneers, and the results have been correspondingly satisfactory; but among those yet to come off are some which will, we are assured, in these respects completely outdo all previous ones. There is every probability that they will be successful, but it is impossible to know what the result will be, even an hour before the sale. Some which commenced well have ended poorly, and others which at the start were so bad that it was almost thought advisable to discontinue them, improved as the sale went on, and at the close showed very handsome results.

To-morrow, Messrs. MULLER, WILKINS & CO. have an extensive sale of Rye Beach property, situate on Long Island Sound, in the village of Rye, Westchester County, N. Y., and consisting of twenty-three and a half acres of first quality land, four of which is a grove of fine growth, balance in lawn and under cultivation. This property has a water front of some 900 feet, with a fine sand beach, and has long been a celebrated resort for bathing, boating and fishing. The location is one of the most healthy in Westchester County, the neighborhood unexceptionable, churches and good schools. The time from New-York is one hour by the New-Haven trains, and which stop at Rye some 12 or 15 times daily; and on the completion of the Harlem and Portchester Road, the depot of which will be but a short distance from this property, the time from New-York will be much shortened. The improvements consist of a first-class frame dwelling, containing 18 rooms, finished in modern style; good stable and carriage-house and other outbuildings. For private residence or for first-class summer hotel there is no place in the vicinity of New-York that can offer equal advantages.

Carriages will be ready to convey persons to the premises on the arrival of the 11:30 train.

DWELLINGS TO LET.

TO LET—FULLY AND HANDSOMELY furnished, a very elegant country-seat, located on the Passaic, opposite Belleville, N. J. AUCTION SALE OF THE CELEBRATED RYE BEACH PROPERTY.

ADRIAN H. MULLER, P. R. WILKINS & CO. will sell at auction on THURSDAY, May 27, at 2 o'clock, on the premises:

The valuable real estate situate on Long Island Sound, in the village of Rye, Westchester County, N. Y., known as the Rye Beach property, consisting of 23¾ acres of first quality land, four of which is a grove of fine growth, balance in lawn and under cultivation. This property has a water front of some 900 feet, with a fine sand beach, and has long been a celebrated resort for bathing, boating and fishing. The upland is high, and from its shape (being nearly square) and fronting on three roads, can be divided into several beautiful villa sites. The location is one of the most healthy in Westchester County; the neighborhood unexceptionable, churches and good schools. The time from New-York is one hour by the New-Haven trains, and which stop at Rye some 12 or 15 times daily; and on the completion of the Harlem and Portchester Road, the depot of which will be but a short distance from this property, the time from New-York will be much shortened. The improvements consist of a first-class frame dwelling, containing 18 rooms, finished in modern style; good stable and carriage-house and other outbuildings. For private residence or for first-class summer hotel there is no place in the vicinity of New-York that can offer equal advantages.

Carriages will be ready to convey persons to the premises on the arrival of the 11:30 train.

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY given by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of the City of New-York, that pursuant to the provisions of the act entitled "An act to authorize the construction of a Railroad through 23d-st., in the City of New-York," passed May 10, 1869, they will sell at public auction in the "Governor's Room," of the City Hall Park, on WEDNESDAY, June 2, 1869, at 12 M., to the highest bidder for the same, the right, privilege and franchise to construct, operate, and use a railroad with a double track, and the necessary turnouts and switches for the proper working of the same, through, along, and upon 23d-st., in the City of New-York, from the North River to the East River, on the following terms and conditions:

First—The person or persons or corporation whose bid shall be accepted on such sale shall, within four months from the day of the sale, finish and complete said road and equip the same with the requisite number of cars and horses; but should he or they be restrained or prevented by any legal proceedings which are not collusive from constructing and completing the same, the time during which they are so restrained shall not be deemed or taken to be part of the time within which the same is to be completed. The said party or parties shall execute a bond in the sum of five hundred thousand dollars, in two good and sufficient securities, to be approved by the said Commissioners, conditioned for the completion of said road and equipment of the said railroad as above provided, subject to the conditions, and with the authority as follows.

Second—Said railroad shall be constructed on the most approved plan for the construction of City railroads, and with the rail now used upon the street railroads in Philadelphia, commonly called Philadelphia rail, and shall be run at such speed as the convenience of passengers may require, and shall be subject to such reasonable rules and regulations in respect thereto as the Common Council of the City of New-York may from time to time by ordinance prescribe; and the said party or corporation will be authorized by law to charge the same rate of fare for the conveyance of passengers on said railroad as is now charged by other City railroads in said City.

Third—In the construction, operation, or use of such railroad upon the route above designated, should such person or corporation deem it necessary or proper to run upon, intersect, or use any portion of other railroad tracks now laid upon said street above named, he or they are authorized by the aforesaid act to run upon, intersect and use the same; and in case they cannot agree with the owner or owners thereof respecting the compensation or payment to be made therefor, then the amount of such compensation or payment shall be ascertained and determined in the manner provided by subdivision six of the twenty-eighth section of the act entitled "An act to authorize the formation of railroad corporations, and to regulate the same," passed April second, eighteen hundred and fifty. And should any real estate or interest therein be required for the purpose of constructing said railroad, as above specified and authorized, for which the said person or corporation shall be unable to agree with the owner or owners for the use or purchase thereof, they may acquire the right to use or title to the same in the manner specified in the fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth and twenty-first sections of the said act of April second, eighteen hundred and fifty, except that in any of the proceedings for any of the purposes authorized by said act, it shall not be necessary that the petition to the Supreme Court shall make any allegations of, or reference to any incorporation, capital stock, surveys or maps, or of the filing of any certificate of location. But in all cases the use of said street for the purposes of said railroad, as authorized by this act, shall be considered a public use, consistent with the uses for which the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of said City hold said street. Nothing in the said act contained shall authorize or allow the extension of more than two tracks in any part of said street.

Fourth—The Legislature reserve the right to alter, amend, or repeal the act giving the authority to construct and operate such railroad.

Fifth—On payment into the City Treasury of the amount of the said bid, and on the execution and approval of the said bond, and the execution of an agreement to perform the conditions and stipulations herein expressed, the said Commissioners will deliver to the party or parties entitled to the same, as aforesaid, a certificate that he or they are entitled to such grant.

Sixth—The Commissioners reserve the right to reject any bid as being made fraudulently or collusively.

A. OAKLEY HALL, Mayor.
RICHARD B. CONNOLLY, Comptroller.
PETER B. SWEENY, Chamberlain.
JOHN K. HACKETT, Recorder.
JOHN MOORE, Chairman Finance Committee Board of Aldermen.
PETER CULKIN, Chairman Finance Committee Board of Assistant Aldermen;
Commissioners of the Sinking Fund.

HEAVY DEFALCATIONS.

A Brooklyn Bank and a Wall-Street House Involved.

The Late President of the Atlantic Bank Misapplies its Funds.

Alleged Fraudulent Sales of Consignments by Messrs. Scott & Munson.

ATLANTIC BANK EXCITEMENT.

The sounds of sad but eloquent voices proclaiming glowing eulogies on the character of WM. C. RUSHMORE, one of the victims of the recent Long Island Railroad calamity, have scarcely died on the ears of the people of Brooklyn when they are astounded by the sudden discovery that at least some transactions of the deceased banker were not conducted on strict business principles, however honorable his intentions and desires may have been. Mr. RUSHMORE, it may be remembered, was President of the Atlantic Bank, and the commercial community, as well as all who knew him in other relations, had long placed the greatest confidence in his honor and integrity. That anything should have been discovered calculated to throw a cloud over his memory is cause for profound regret on the part of multitudes of citizens. It appears, however, that facts which could not be suppressed speak inconvertibly, and the bank directors have been compelled to make public as much of the truth as was necessary to conciliate the depositors and stockholders.

A few days after the funeral of Mr. RUSHMORE the directors of the bank assembled together for the purpose of inquiring into the condition of the books and to appoint a committee of three of their number to carry on the business. Mr. GEORGE S. PUFFER was elected Chairman of the Committee, with authority to act as President pro tem. On the Tuesday after the death of Mr. RUSHMORE, Mr. PUFFER discovered that certain discrepancies existed in the account, and soon found that there was a deficiency in the securities of from $100,000 to $250,000. Up to that moment it was believed that the bank was in a highly prosperous condition; that the capital of $500,000 was secure; that a surplus of $78,000 was on hand, and that $35,000 of earned money was available for the payment of the July dividend. In fact, they had no reason to suppose otherwise. When, therefore, Mr. PUFFER made the startling discovery that the capital was reduced from a quarter to half the original amount, the fact could scarcely be realized. The more diligent and constant the scrutiny, however, the more certain it became that the bank had sustained a serious blow.

Ever since the first discovery, the directors have been engaged in probing the matter to the bottom; but their final action was precipitated, on the 24th, through a rumor having been circulated that the affairs of the bank were in a shaky condition. A slight run was the consequence of the rumor, and depositors exhibited extreme anxiety to learn the full particulars. Very many drew out their deposits, and there is no doubt that great excitement would have existed to-day but for the prompt action of the directors.

The directors met yesterday morning at an early hour and organized by appointing the President pro tem., Mr. GEO. S. PUFFER, Chairman. The following-named gentlemen were present: Judge John A. Lott, Hon. Henry C. Murphy, Peter C. Cornell, Henry K. Sheldon, B. Platnitie, John D. French, William Hunter, J.

The state of affairs having been fully considered, the directors drew up an agreement pledging themselves, individually and collectively, to carry the bank through the crisis and to continue the business. Perfectly assured by this statement, many who drew out their deposits on Monday relodged them yesterday morning, and the run is now at an end.

The directors were about to reorganize the bank under the State system when the crisis occurred, but now that it is over it is expected that the change will be effected without delay.

It is understood that a large part of the deficit arises from advances made to a well-known contractor, on securities which the bank directors deem inadequate, but which the contractor insists are good for the amount. The gentleman's account is stated to be largely overdrawn.

Another source of the deficit is understood to be the purchase of real estate by Mr. RUSHMORE, in his own name, the deeds being put away in the bank, and labeled by him "to secure the bank." Mr. RUSHMORE may have intended to hold the bank harmless in these purchases, but as the facts stand, the property belongs to the Rushmore estate, and the money that paid for it belonged to the bank.

LARGE FRAUDULENT SALES.

Messrs. Scott & Munson, of No. 91 Wall-street, Reported to have Decamped with $65,000 of Illegal Gains.

The commercial community was considerably agitated yesterday by the report that a large and daring fraud had been perpetrated by the firm of SCOTT & MUNSEN, storage merchants, of No. 91 Wall-street, involving a loss to several grain merchants. It is said that they disappeared on Saturday last with $65,000 in their possession, the profits from the fraudulent sale of 70,000 bushels of oats intrusted to the care of the firm. The grain was owned by different parties, and was placed in the stores of the firm on the north pier of the Atlantic Docks, Brooklyn. They occupied six rented stores here, which were rented from MRS. THOMAS SHORTLAND, the owner. During last week it was noticed that the firm was selling an unusual amount of grain from the stores, but this created no suspicion at the time. On Saturday, however, both SCOTT and MUNSON were inquired after but could not be found, and on Monday it was reported that they had committed a breach of trust, absconding with the money which they had realized from their transaction. On Monday evening a private watchman was detailed to take charge of the stores by MR. BACON MONTAGUE, of Brooklyn, who found a few hundred bushels stored in them which had not been sold. These were transferred to a schooner yesterday, being the only kind of grain stored with the firm which was not disposed of previous to their flight. A number of merchants were represented as being heavy losers by the alleged defalcation, and to be deeply embarrassed in business in consequence, but their names were not ascertained. Messrs. SCOTT & MUNSON were formerly employed on the Atlantic Docks, and entered into business for themselves about three years ago. Mr. VAN NOSTRAND, the well-known confectioner, becoming the head partner and moneyed man in the firm, of which he did not remain a member long, owing, it is understood, to some cause of distrust toward his two junior partners. SCOTT and MUNSON were both regarded as honest and exemplary young merchants by those who had commercial relations with them. The former was married, and the latter was single, supporting an aged aunt. It is believed that they were tempted to engage in the dishonest sale of grain in consequence of having made several speculations recently in which they were severe sufferers, and came very near ruin. Their present whereabouts are not known, but it is supposed that they have escaped from the City and country, perhaps to return in a few years as strangers under assumed names.

REFORMED DUTCH CHUUCH.

Celebration of the Centennial of the North Dutch Church.

The one hundredth anniversary of the Collegiate North Reformed Dutch Church was commemorated with appropriate and elaborate exercises at the church edifice corner of William and Fulton streets, yesterday. The occasion was regarded with considerable significance, the Dutch Church being recognized as one of the early and most influential exponents and promoters of the reformed religion in this country, and being identified with numerous important local and historical events during the Colonial period and the Revolution.

Services were conducted in the morning and evening. Rev. THOMAS HEWITT, D. D., presided at the former, which was very largely attended. Rev. Drs. DEMOREST, WOODBRIDGE and DE WITT, of the Theological Seminary at New-Brunswick, and Rev. Dr. EDDY, of Brooklyn, were among the clergymen present. After a voluntary upon the organ, and an invocation by the presiding minister, Mr. THOMAS JEREMIAH was introduced and recited an introductory ode, which was inscribed to the Church. Rev. GEO. H. FISHER, of Hackensack, N. J., delivered a prayer, and was followed by Rev. Dr. DE WITT, who gave an entertaining account of the history of the Reformed Church in this country. Rev. THOMAS W. CHAMBERS, D. D., was then introduced, and entered upon the delivery of a memorial address, having reference to the North Dutch Church. The exercises closed with prayers, hymns and the benediction.

Laying of a Corner-Stone.

The ceremony of laying the corner-stone of the Collegiate Dutch Reformed Church was performed yesterday, at the junction of Fifth-avenue and Forty-eighth-street, before a considerable crowd of both sexes. The opening prayer was offered by Rev. WM. H. CLARK, connected with the Mission of the Reformed Church on the corner of Fifth-avenue and Twenty-ninth-street. Singing followed, to the accompaniment of a melodeon, and a list was then read of articles placed in the zinc box which was to be inserted in a hollow of the stone upon which the corner-stone was to be laid. These were a Bible, a prayer-book and hymn-book, the Constitution of the Reformed Dutch Church, minutes of sundry Synods, and so forth.

The inscription on the corner-stone stated the date of its being laid, giving the names of Rev. Drs. THOS. DE WITT, THOS. E. VERMILYE, Pastor; W. CHAMBERS and JAMES M. LUDLOW, as the pastors of the different City churches, as the architect of the building, WHEELER SMITH, and as the Building Committee, JAMES PHYFE, WILLIAM SCHERMERHORN, RICHARD ANDERSON and DAVID GILLESPIE.

After the reading of these lists, Rev. Dr. DE WITT announced, in a few brief words, his purpose of laying the stone, and without further ceremony struck it three times, giving, at each blow, the name of each person of the Trinity. Prayers and addresses terminated the ceremony. The architect of the new building is Mr. W. WHEELER SMITH, who has designed it in the English decorated gothic style. It will be finished during next year, and will cost about $300,000.

PEARSALL-O'CONNOR.

Judge Cardoso Reluctantly Recognizes the Right of Habeas Corpus.

STARTLING SCENES IN COURT.

The Conclusion of the Trial—Indignant Letter from a New-York Lawyer—Call for a Meeting of the Bar of New-York.

The Pearsall-O'Connor habeas corpus case, about which so much has been said, written and published, was before Judge CARDOZO, of the Supreme Court, again yesterday, having been adjourned over from Friday of last week. The facts of this exceedingly interesting proceeding are, as our readers may recollect, substantially as follows:

One JULIA MCGRAW commenced an action in the Supreme Conrt of this district some months ago to obtain a divorce against her husband, on the ground of adultery. The matter was referred, and after the taking of considerable testimony, the referee made a report, and on this the Court granted a decree of divorce to the wife, and also adjudged that Mrs. MCGRAW should thereafter have the custody of a daughter aged five or six years. Afterward the divorced husband learned that his former wife had taken this little girl to a house of ill-fame in Crosby-street, kept by Mrs. PEARSALL, sister of Mrs. MCGRAW. The father of the child, as soon as he learned this fact, made application by petition to have the custody of the child changed, on the ground that it would be ruined if it were to continue to live in this house. Considerable testimony was then taken at Supreme Court, Chambers, and pending the examination, as alleged, the mother and child were spirited away, the sisters PEARSALL and O'CONNOR being charged by Judge CARDOZO with furnishing the material aid. This charge the two sisters deny most emphatically, as appears from affidavits made by them and published in the TIMES of the 16th inst.

Judge CARDOZO granted an order of arrest, and on or about the 7th inst. the women PEARSALL and O'CONNOR were taken into custody by two Deputy Sheriffs, and confined in the Tombs, on two charges: First, for contempt of Court in aiding and abetting the escape of their sister and her child beyond the jurisdiction of the Court, and, second, that they were guilty of keeping a disorderly house. On the 12th inst. a writ of habeas corpus was granted by Presiding Justice CLERKE, and made returnable before Judge CARDOZO. In this way the matter came before the Judge last named on the 14th inst. and again on the 21st. On the day last named it was adjourned over until yesterday.

The Chamber-room, as upon previous occasions, was crowded with a very promiscuous set of spectators. Inside the bar railing the assembly consisted mainly of respectable members of the Bar, who had been drawn hither by the accounts which have been published of this most remarkable case. Mr. District-Attorney GARVIN, Mr. E. W. STOUGHTON and Mr. JOHN GRAHAM occupied seats within the inner railing and close to the bench. Mr. TOWNSEND sat outside the inner railing, and at the table allotted to counsel and reporters. After some delay, Mr. JAMES O'CONNOR FARR addressed the Court substantially as follows: He wished to say a few words with regard to the matter pending before the Court. His Honor was of course aware that in the proceedings which had been taken before him a few days ago, for the purpose of obtaining the custody of the child, he (the speaker) acted as one of the counsel for Mrs. MCGRAW. The latter, pending the decision in the matter, had spirited away the child; at all events she, her mother and the latter were gone from the jurisdiction of the Court. What the mother had done was without the knowledge or consent of her counsel. He had no power over her, and he knew nothing of her whereabouts. The statements he then made were with reference to his faith as an officer of this Court, and he ascribed these statements to be due to the prisoners to the Court and to himself. His connection with the case ceased with his duties to his client in the civil proceeding already alluded to. He could offer no suggestion, except to ask the Court if it would not be better, under all the circumstances, to exercise a little clemency, and to let the prisoners out on bail in a small amount, or let them go on their parole. He felt confident they had not aided the mother to commit the alleged contempt of Court.

Judge CARDOZO—I am bound to say, Mr. FARR, in answer to the suggestions you have made, that I have at all times been ready and willing, upon any proper representations to the Court on behalf of these misguided women, to relieve them from the charge of contempt. It is my reasonable proof that they were originally innocent of any complicity in it; or that if they were not so, it was beyond their power to undo the wrong which they had committed. In respect to the other and more serious charge—the keeping of a common bawdy-house—I should also, at times, have been entirely willing to accept such bail upon that charge, and to exercise such merciful consideration in that respect as to bring the amount within their reach, as I lawfully might in the just discharge of my duty. But the difficulty is that they and their counsel do not agree with you in respect to the wisest course to be pursued in the matter. They think it wisest to defy the law and to defy the Court; and while I might listen, as I certainly would, with the greatest consideration to your suggestions, yet as you are not their counsel, and not authorized to speak for them, I cannot entertain your proposition. It is proper, I might add, entirely right, that you, as a reputable member of the profession, engaged in the civil suit out of which these charges grew, were entirely justified in making the suggestions you have, but as they proceed from you, and not from the counsel of these women, I cannot entertain them.

Mr. TOWNSEND—If it please your Honor, as counsel for these women, I desire to place myself in a proper position—such a position as I desire to hold before your Honor and before all Courts where I practice. I have appeared for these women simply because they were charged with an offence of which they said they were not guilty. I have made no effort in any instance whatever to defy the Court, or to place the Court in an improper position. I never have suspected or intimated that the Court had been actuated by mistaken or improper motives. I have acted simply upon the statement of these women that they were charged with contempt of Court, and that they were not guilty. I have distinctly told them that so far as the charge of contempt was concerned, if their statement was incorrect, I should be the first to withdraw from their case and leave them entirely at the mercy of the Court. When I look at this case in all its bearings, I cannot see that I have done anything more than by virtue of my oath of office I was bound to do; I can't see that I have done more or less than my sworn duty. As to any remarks made between myself and the Judge, and which may have been made public, I regret them so far as their tendency is to bring the Court into contempt. I have simply to say that as counsel I believed these women were charged with contempt of Court simply; that inasmuch as they were charged with an offence of which they claimed to be innocent, they should be heard as speedily as possible, and not be compelled to remain in prison, especially as sickness had been brought upon them by their incarceration. In regard to the question of contempt, we are prepared, as we have always been, to satisfy the mind of the Court that there has been a great mistake. Your Honor has been misinformed. The statements and the testimony, if any, upon which your Honor acted, were erroneous. As to the O'CONNORS keeping a bawdy-house, we ask an examination. Whatever may be the fact as to ANNE E. PEARSALL, we can show most conclusively that the prisoner O'CONNOR has never in any way been a party, and she cannot be held on that charge.

In his further remarks Mr. TOWNSEND referred to certain reports in the newspapers, and disclaimed having been a party to them in any manner. The responsibility did not attach to him.

Judge CARDOZO thought any reference to the newspapers would not become the dignity of the Court. He was ready to listen to any application on behalf of the prisoners; he was ready to make what he deemed a right disposition of the case.

Mr. TOWNSEND—Then I merely move on the examination as to the contempt proceedings.

Judge CARDOZO—Do you propose to waive an examination as to the charge of keeping a disorderly house, or do you wish an examination as to both of the charges which have been made?

Mr. TOWNSEND—It does not yet appear that the woman O'CONNOR is guilty of keeping a disorderly house. We say she is not. She has no connection with it, and never has had. We will go into an examination now as to her, on this point. As to PEARSALL, we will waive an examination and give bail.

District-Attorney GARVIN said he would not consent to have the cases divided in that manner.

Mr. TOWNSEND then asked the Court to fix the amounts of bail.

Judge CARDOZO—Yes, I will take the papers and examine them, and during the day I will fix the amount of bail.

Mr. GRAHAM then said that he wished to have the affidavits of the prisoners, which had been published, read to the Court.

Mr. TOWNSEND—If they have been published I do not see the necessity of their being read in Court.

Judge CARDOZO said he paid very little attention to what appeared in the newspapers. He had read the affidavits in question, and counsel could read them.

Mr. TOWNSEND then read the affidavits of Mrs. PEARSALL and JOANNA O'CONNOR, which were published exclusively in the TIMES of the 16th inst. The reading having been concluded Mr. TOWNSEND said that so he learned from the Police officers in the precinct in which the prisoner's house is situated, neither of them keep a disorderly house in the sense intended by the statute.

At this stage of the proceedings there was a long pause. Messrs. GRAHAM, GARVIN and STOUGHTON conversed together in low tones, and occasionally one of them held an interview with the Judge presiding. Finally Mr. GRAHAM left his seat inside the railing, went outside and took his stand directly in front of, and about two feet from Mr. TOWNSEND. In this position he read a long speech. He wished first to explain why he had volunteered to become the aid or assistant to the District-Attorney in this case. He claimed for himself entire independence as to the judiciary, and insisted that respect is due to judicial office, whether exercised by the worthy or unworthy officials. There was a cordiality of feeling and friendship between himself and worthy Judges, which he had cultivated. Mr. TOWNSEND had asked his advice in this matter as to the course he ought to pursue. Mr. TOWNSEND had seen fit to violate the principles of professional etiquette and honor by revealing to the public the conversation he had with Judge CARDOZO. The speaker thought it was no more than right that he should then tell what transpired when Mr. TOWNSEND called on him. Mr. GRAHAM said he told Mr. TOWNSEND it was not his duty to take up the case. He knew the relations of friendship between the Judge and Mr. TOWNSEND, contracted mainly by reason of introductions from the speaker. This being the case, he, GRAHAM, thought it was not his duty to vindicate or to secure the triumph of a brothel. When a brothel was dragging a Court, counsel's first duty was to the Court. Mr. TOWNSEND had entered upon this case in the most offensive spirit. Counsel had seen his handiwork in a newspaper which he had patronized from its birth. He believed in that paper; never until now had he seen in its editorial columns anything to criticise or condemn. But neither editors nor reporters are responsible for this. The counsel on the other side, and he only, should be held accountable. In a friendly conversation with the Judge, his Honor had unbosomed the feelings and emotions of his heart. There was evidently a struggle in the Judge's mind between humanity and duty. The two prisoners had induced their own sister to enter their brothel with her little daughter. Would he be a just Judge, who, under such circumstances, having the power to prevent it, did not? There was a moral conviction that the money which enabled this mother to take herself and child out of the jurisdiction of the Court, came from the prisoners. Mr. TOWNSEND had consulted one of the brightest luminaries of the New-York Bar, but he did not like to give an opinion. In conclusion, Mr. GRAHAM said he would appeal to all the reputable members of the New-York Bar to say if Mr. TOWNSEND had not been guilty of unprofessional conduct. The last word of Mr. GRAHAM'S speech was scarcely uttered when

Mr. TOWNSEND half arose to his feet, but Judge CARDOZO spoke promptly as follows:

JUDGE CARDOZO'S OPINION.

Whatever conclusion I may reach on the contempt matter, of course the prisoners will be admitted to bail, and it will soon, therefore, become my duty to transfer the papers to the learned District-Attorney for his action. This is not, as one of the distinguished lawyers who has appeared knows, the first time that I have felt it my duty, by reason of what transpired before me in a civil suit, to institute inquiry before myself as to whether a crime had been committed, and, while I trust that the occasion will never arise again, yet if it should I shall not fail to meet what I may deem its requirements. I confess that the great guilt of this matter startled and shocked me. I had no idea that such wickedness could exist. And when it was brought to my judicial notice that there could be women so abandoned as to consent to receive into their own brothel, for the purpose of prostitution, their own young sister, barely a woman of full age, I thought that I should be unworthy of the high trust reposed in me if I did not do my utmost to destroy such a pest house and bring such polluted creatures to condign punishment. And reviewing, as is my habit, my whole course in this matter, from the moment that I endeavored to rescue a little child and her young mother from destruction of both soul and body, down to this time, I find nothing to regret, and nothing which I could wish I had done otherwise. Nor has anything connected with the matter for a moment disturbed my equanimity—aye, not even the presence of (and even responsible for it) a conversation, in which friendly advice to an officer of the Court as to his duty, was given to one who was under obligations to me for civilities andcourtesies beyond the mere demands of judicial duty extended to his mother, and for whose benefit I had made him known to me. I must acknowledge the indefatigability with which the learned District-Attorney has seconded my efforts, and I cannot sufficiently express my obligation to the three great leaders who have voluntarily appeared and taken active part in the matter. Indeed my acknowledgments are due for the many letters of support which I have received from my professional brethren, who thus, with but few insignificant exceptions, have shown that the Bar of this City are the greatest social purity, and commanded decided action upon the part of the judiciary to save little children and young women from vice and degradation.

I have thus far done what I could to sustain the dignity of the Court and preserve its orders from defiance, and to punish the guilty over to the District-Attorney, if only remains for me, after saying that I shall not stop until the law has been fully vindicated, to make a single remark. Unless those who (because a Judge asks a young mother the promise to be present) fled from New-York) mean to exile themselves from our State assuredly they will have to submit to the law—which is all I have ever required of any of these women. Whenever they return to our jurisdiction, be it sooner or later, the proper officers will see to it that they are brought before the Court whose process, as well as whose sympathy and clemency they have outraged.

These remarks having been delivered an adjournment until to-day at 10 o'clock was directed, instanter, leaving Mr. TOWNSEND no opportunity to say a few minutes whatever when the Court reopened and other business was conducted by the same Judge.

Card from Mr. Townsend.

NO. 254 BROADWAY,
NEW-YORK, Tuesday, May 25, 1869.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

As you have kindly offered me a place in your columns, to reply to the remarks of Judge CARDOZO and Mr. JNO. GRAHAM, made yesterday in Court, which I was prevented from doing at that time, by the action of the former, I thank you, and will avail myself of the privilege as soon as I can get the stenographer's report of the language used, which I trust will be in time for your issue of Wednesday.

I am very respectfully yours,
JOHN D. TOWNSEND,
Attorney for Pearsall and O'Connor.

Call for a Meeting of the Bar.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The closing scene in the famous case of "The People vs. PEARSALL and O'CONNOR," was enacted yesterday in the Supreme Court before his Honor, Judge CARDOZO. The affair was quite spicy, and went off not to the entire satisfaction of his Honor and his Honor's friends. The women are to be released on nominal bail, and the papers have been placed in the hands of the District-Attorney, who is to take further action in the matter, at some future day—which means, in the parlance of that official's office, that the matter is at an end, and that the accused will not be again molested. All honor to their unflinching and uncompromising counsel! Another proof that even in New-York a supposed criminal cannot be imprisoned without the benefit of the law. But if the writer's estimate of the pluck and spirit of the New-York Bar be correct, the end is not yet. A scene took place in Court, yesterday, the like of which it has never before been our province to witness, and which has stirred a deep sensation in legal circles. Judge CARDOZO evidently foresaw his defeat; foresaw that he must retire from the position which he had assumed; that the pluck of the women's counsel could not be shaken by intimidation, that the public were suspicious of motives, and that law, not dictatorial tyranny, must have its course. But his Honor could not retire without an attempt to justify his unheard-of course, and could not well vent his own feelings, consistently with the "dignity of the Court." But he found a good substitute in the person of a legal gentleman, who, with the permission and approval of the Court, opened a volley of language on the defendants' counsel which made respectable lawyers turn to their brethren and ask with a shudder, "Is this a Court of Justice?" We have heard warm spats between counsel, but never a continuous tirade for over an hour; never with the sanction and approval of the Court; never because a counsel chose to exercise his right to defend a client charged with crime. And surely one she should never be permitted to do all the talking while the other is shut down instantly by the fiat of the Court. The most remarkable feature to be noticed in this gentleman's speech was the total absence of a word of legal argument in justification of Judge CARDOZO'S unheard-of course. The principles on which such proceedings are based are to us inscrutable. The members of the Bar are anxious to know whether a lawyer has not a right to defend any and every client charged with crime who may apply to him for help. Should a lawyer have the temerity to defend a person who is prosecuted by a pet of the Court, has the Court a right to bring in special counsel, and to drown the offender in a torrent of offensive and damaging abuse? Should such language be false or specially damaging in its aim and tendency, must counsel endure it in silence? There is something here that demands investigation. The Bar of New-York is not asleep, but knowing its rights insists that they shall be fully accepted. Will respectable members of the Bar call a meeting and express their sentiments on this subject?

A Gambling House Broken Up.

A few minutes before midnight last night, Sergeant DILKS, of the Fourth District Police Court, made a descent upon the faro bank of MOSES P. PHILLIPS, on the second floor of No. 276 Bowery. The descent was made by virtue of a warrant issued by Justice CONNOLLY, and the Police arrested the proprietor, PHILLIPS, as well as DAVID LYNCH and JACOB HARRIS, who were found in the premises. The prisoners were locked up in the Spring-street Police-station for examination.
